Operation of Schools Placed Up to Local Officials

NO MORE MONIES AVAILABLE UNDER 7-MONTH PROGRAM

Ramsey Predicts Schools in 90 to 100 Counties Will Close Doors for Year by First of April.

EDUCATORS URGE FUND DIVERSION

Rivers Told 1919 Statute Affords Plan for Keeping Institutions Open.

The State Board of Education yesterday officially informed all city and county school superintendents in the state that the "continued operation of your schools will be the responsibility of your local school authorities."

The board pointed out that no further state funds will be available under the seven-month school program and that all the counties and local districts may anticipate a continued distribution of the equalization fund.

Thus far this year the schools have received slightly less than $5,000,000 of their $9,637,000 appropriation. The payment is approximately 56 per cent of the appropriation. Numerous schools already have closed over the state. Authorities said, and Ralph L. Ramsey, secretary of the Georgia Education Association, has reported that schools in from 90 to 100 of the state's 159 counties will be closed for the year by April 1.

Rivers Calls on Georgians To Save 'Little New Deal'

'Worse Things Than Taxes,' He Declares, Denying Administration Is 'Extravagant,' and Asserting That After All Economies, State Still Will Need $8,500,000.

Governor Rivers called on Georgians last night to recognize "there are worse things than taxes" and not permit curtailment of vital governmental functions "in the name of economy."

The executive, in a radio appeal to the state in the wake of the legislature's refusal to vote revenue to meet appropriations, said he intended "no abuse and no apology" and stood ready actively to slash all non-essential governmental costs so schools, health work and aid to eleemosynary institutions might not be impaired.

But, he warned, "after every economy possible is effected in the operation of the state government by me, or by the business group (authorized by the senate) or by the house group, or by any group, there will still have to be raised approximately 8 1-2 million dollars in money with which to reopen our schools, to resume our health work, to continue our old-age pensions and to care for our mentally sick and unfortunate."

"This is a fact we must face and we cannot escape it simply by talking down overhead expense."

While not directly attacking the legislature for refusing to provide more money, Rivers said the lack of funds will shortly:

"Close the public schools in a majority of the counties and communities of Georgia."

"Force workers for public health, such as county nurses, to be withdrawn from the field of service."

"Find pensions to aged reduced or withdrawn."

"Find a general reduction in all of the state's services, not only"

GREEN BAY, Wis., March 20.—

(AP)—A tall, elderly man with lanky legs walked along East Walnut street, kicking mud and ice off car fenders, and wiping off head and tail lights. Nobody could figure it out, not even the policeman who took him in tow.

"I hate to see dirty automobiles," the tall man explained.

"Why don't people take care of them? I haven't an automobile myself. If I did, I'd keep it clean."

He was released.

PRESIDENT NAMES WILLIAM DOUGLAS TO HIGHEST COURT

Appointment of SEC Head Regarded as Victory for Inner Circle of Aggressive New Dealers

HIS CAREER ONE OF HORATIO ALGER

Some Western Senators Disappointed But Majority Approve Selection.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—(AP) William O. Douglas, whose Horatio Alger career carried him up the ladder from the status of farm hand and struggling student to the post of chief regulator of Wall Street, was nominated for the supreme court today by President Roosevelt.

Just past 40 years of age, the chairman of the Securities Commission will become, if confirmed, the youngest supreme court justice since Joseph Story, of Massachusetts, took his seat on the tribunal in 1811 at the age of 32.

There was no doubt tonight on Capitol Hill that he would be confirmed with ease. Many senators hastened to express their approval. The hardest thing said about Douglas was that he was not a western resident. That section is now unrepresented on the court and there had been demands that this situation be corrected.

While there was a bit of disappointment among some western senators, they for the most part indicated approval of the choice. In fact, Senator McNary, of Oregon, the Republican floor-leader, called the appointment "excellent" and said he was "confident that confirmation will be given without any undue delay or objection."

Douglas was at his desk in the SEC building when the nomination was announced. Jerome Frank, a member of the commission, informed him of his promotion and told him the "President couldn't have done better." Douglas, himself, would make no comment for publication, but he yielded to the importunings of cameramen and posed for pictures at the end of the commission's long conference table, once leaning far back in his chair with his feet on the table. He appeared to enjoy the informality of the pose.

The appointment was rated a "victory" for the "inner circle" of more aggressive New Dealers. But it was, in addition, a victory for men of such viewpoint as Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho,

Gamble 'Sold Out' Turner for Pardon

By L. A. FARRELL.

The state of Georgia has "paid off" Jack Gamble, convicted slayer and burglar, with his freedom for tipping off police to Forrest Turner's hideout near Augusta two months ago, it was learned last night.

Governor Rivers said he had granted Gamble a conditional pardon and that Gamble has left the state. The Governor said that the terms of the pardon provide that he must serve the balance of a 10-year sentence if he either returns to Georgia or is picked up in any other state on any other charge.

Officials meekly denied reports that Gamble's pretty wife, who lived in Augusta, really gave them the tip-off. They insisted that all of their information came from Gamble.

Governor Rivers granted the

WALTER HENDRIX APPOINTED JUDGE OF FULTON COURT

Named by Rivers to New Division of Superior Bench, Resigning Post of County Attorney.

HUGHES SPALDING TO REPLACE HIM

Selected Because of Fiscal Experience and His Ability as Lawyer.

Governor Rivers yesterday announced the appointment of Walter C. Hendrix, attorney for Fulton county, to be judge of the newly created division of the Fulton superior court.

Simultaneously it was learned that the Fulton county commissioners have determined on the election of Hughes Spalding as the new county attorney and that they have prevailed on Spalding to accept the post. The commissioners, it was understood, desire the services of Spalding not only as attorney but also as a fiscal adviser, inasmuch as his extensive practice has included the handling of many large estates and in acting as fiscal adviser for some of the state's most important businesses and most prominent individuals.

Hendrix, who will tender his resignation as county attorney to accept the judgeship, will be sworn in by the Governor at 8:30 o'clock this morning.

The new judge is a former member of the county commission and for many years has been one of Atlanta's best known lawyers. He is senior member of the firm of Hendrix & Buchanan.

In selecting Hendrix for the judgeship the Governor places on the Fulton superior bench one of his oldest personal friends in the county. In 1927 when Governor Rivers first served in the state senate his desk was next to that of Hendrix, who placed the then 30-year-old senator from Lakeland in nomination for president pro tem of the senate, a post to which he was elected and which gave him his first state-wide political recognition.

When Governor Rivers launched his campaign in 1938 Hendrix was one of the organizers and president of the Fulton County Rivers Club. At that time he held no political office. Last year, although he strongly supported Governor Rivers for re-election he took no active part in the campaign because of his position as county attorney.

Uses Fist on Workers' Alliance Spokesman

REPRESENTATIVE E. E. COX

WPA Plans To Cut 9,500 From Georgia Relief Rolls

Cox Strikes Alliance Worker Following Exchange of Words in Corridor.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—Representative Eugene Cox, of Georgia, engaged in a brief encounter in one of the corridors just off the house chamber today when a committee from the Workers' Alliance sought him out in an effort to gain his support of additional relief funds.

Summoned from the floor to see the group, Representative Cox struck one of three members of the Alliance committee after an argument over his stand on relief funds.

Eyewitnesses to the fray said only one blow was passed, the lobbying group retreating when the fiery Georgian landed on one of their members.

The Workers' Alliance claims some 400,000 members from 45 states, made up chiefly of WPA workers and unemployed. It includes among its high officials a number of avowed Communists.

The representative of the organization struck by the Georgia congressman was later identified as E. W. Ozmun, vice president of the alliance for the District of Columbia division. Accompanied by a field worker, and a negro WPA worker who was represented as a constituent of the Georgian's, Ozmun sent in a card for Cox at the public reception door.

When the congressman learned who his callers were, he minded them of the Communistic complexion of the organization they represented and said he wasn't interested in discussing relief appropriations with them.

Ozmun is reported to have remarked: "We will remember that in the next election."

Taking a healthy sock at his caller, Cox is reported as replying: "This will give you something to remember until then."

The committee scattered and Representative Cox returned to the floor of the house.

DALADIER ORDERS SECRET MASSING

Reich's Legions March From Prague in Direction of Bucharest.

LONDON, March 20.—(UP)—Great Britain was understood tonight to have called upon eight European powers to join her in a bold "stop Hitler" declaration outlawing the German seizure of Czecho-Slovakia and establishing a united front to resist any new shattering of frontiers by the Nazis.

Welded in the anti-Nazi front would be the fighting strength and influence of Britain, France, Soviet Russia, Poland, Rumania, Yugoslavia, Turkey, Bulgaria and Greece.

Britain simultaneously rushed offers of economic aid to Rumania to prevent it from becoming the next victim of "the imperial interests of Germany."

Premier Daladier, of France, armed with dictatorial powers, ordered a secret mobilization to put the nation on a war footing and it was understood that 60,000 reserves would be called to the colors immediately to strengthen the Maginot line, facing Germany.

If Europe's tension continues for another month, 300,000 extra French troops may be called to active service, it was understood.

Germans on March

Rumors in Budapest, which could not be confirmed, said that Germany had asked permission to move troops across Hungary, hostile neighbor of threatened Rumania. German troops were moving out of conquered Prague, headed east and south—in the general direction of Rumania.

Britain, moving swiftly to forestall another blow by Hitler, was understood to have asked the nine-nation declaration as a counter-suggestion to Russia's call for a six-power conference.

Britain tentatively accepted the Soviet proposal but argued that considerable delay would be involved and that Hitler might strike again before the conference could be brought about.

As result, British diplomats in Paris, Moscow, Warsaw, Angora, Bucharest, Belgrade, Sofia and Athens were said to have been told to seek an immediate nine-power declaration which would:

1.—Condemn Germany's absorption of Czecho-Slovakia and outlaw it by refusing recognition to the Nazi rule—as Britain, France,

RAINEY APPOINTED TO PRISON BOARD

Will Serve as Chairman, With Term Running Until 1944.

Clem E. Rainey yesterday began a term as chairman of the State Prison and Parole Commission that will run until 1944 as the board's reorganization under a new law was completed.

The general assembly changed membership from an appointive to an elective basis. Downing Musgrove, executive secretary to Governor Rivers, said the reassignments of the commission placed the members in the same relative position as they would have been if the previous general assembly had not made their jobs appointive.

Thus G. A. Johns was named for a term ending in 1942 and Vivian Stanley, former chairman, for the term ending in 1940.

Big Brahma Bull Hunted by Posse, Is Shot by Police

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. THOMASVILLE, Ga., March 20. A big Brahma bull, one of a herd of cattle being shipped from the west to the Florida ranges, went berserk here after being unloaded from a car into the railway stock pens and was killed to prevent harm to bystanders.

After escaping from the pen, the bull roamed to the local airport. He exceeded a speedometer reading of 40 miles an hour when chased by a "posse" using a car on the smooth airport field.

When members of the party chased him on foot, the bull turned and proceeded to chase the "pursuers."

Officer Sharkey Braswell fired a tear gas bomb into the face of the beast. It only infuriated the animal, which then turned toward town. Officer Delaney, maneuvering into position, shot the animal between the eyes.

And officers and members of the "posse" ate Brahma bull steaks.

PARKER APPOINTED 'CHIEF EMERITUS'

Fire Department Commander Will Turn Over Duties to Styron Today.

Fire Chief O. J. Parker, who today turns over command of the fire department to Fire Chief C. C. Styron, got a new title yesterday during the last few hours of his duty.

City council unanimously adopted a resolution naming Parker "chief emeritus" of the department.

"Chief Emeritus" Parker will turn over the keys to Chief Styron at 8 o'clock this morning, his last official act.

The council resolution highly praised Parker for his efficient service during the 41 years as an active member of the department.

The retiring department head has already moved from his quarters at fire station No. 1, headquarters, and is living at 498 Dodson drive, S. W., where he has a six-acre estate. Styron has moved into the chief's residence.

Since Parker announced his plans to retire, organizations and groups throughout the city have honored him.

Tribute was paid Chief Parker and his service by members of the Grove Park Civic League when a new pump was formally dedicated yesterday. Captains W. G. Smith and Dolph Harrington and members of department No. 22, drive, S. W., were hosts to members of the league. Atlanta and Fulton county civic leaders participated.

Styron also was feted and both he and Parker made short talks on "Responsibilities of Firemen." George Wilson, president of the West End Business Association; W. A. Jones, of the league, and others had places on the program.

Parker Turns Over Keys to the New Chief

One of the last official acts of Fire Chief O. J. Parker is here recorded. Parker is turning the keys to his desk over to Fire Chief C. C. Styron (left) who this morning begins his new duties. Parker, made chief emeritus yesterday by city council, is retiring after 41 years of service in the department. He plans to live quietly on his little estate at 498 Dodson drive, S. W.

Faster, More Comfortable Trains Held Answer to Railroads' Plight

Willis H. Carrier, Inventor of Air Conditioning Systems, Says Many Transportation Units Today Are More Pleasant Than Staying at Home.

Solution to the present plight of the railroads lies in faster and more comfortable transportation, Willis H. Carrier, inventor of air-conditioning systems and chairman of the board of the Carrier Corporation, Syracuse, N. Y., declared in Atlanta yesterday.

"You can ride in many trains today and be more comfortable than you would be at home," he said. "However, the long-distance buses are giving the railroads some more competition by installing air-conditioning systems."

Carrier was in Atlanta for a meeting of the southern distributors of the Carrier Corporation. He was accompanied by J. Irvine Lyle, president of the company.

Outlining the growth of air-conditioning, Carrier said it was first identified only with industry but has spread rapidly to theaters, department stores, office buildings, steamships and the railroads. He believes it will not be long before air-conditioning will be in the price range of the average home owner.

He said the artificial method of cooling has even spread to mines, enabling miners to work comfortably at a depth of one and one-half miles.

Carrier declared Radio City in New York probably has the most elaborate air-conditioning system in the world. He added that the New York World's Fair will have more artificially cooled units than any previous fair.

"It is now possible for us to take care of a person from birth to death," Carrier said. "We air-condition maternity wards as well as funeral homes."

RIVER DAM APPEAL SLATED FOR TODAY

Delegation of 40 in Capital To Seek Canalization of Chattahoochee.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS. Staff Correspondent. WASHINGTON, March 20.—Development of a lock and dam on the Chattahoochee river to provide a six-foot channel for navigation between Columbus and the Gulf of Mexico will be urged before the army board of engineers tomorrow by a delegation of about 40 citizens of Georgia, Florida and Alabama, who came to Washington today for that purpose.

The delegation is headed by J. W. Woodruff, well-known financier of Columbus, who is president of the Chattahoochee Valley Chamber of Commerce.

Woodruff Dines Delegates. Preliminary to the hearing tomorrow, Mr. Woodruff gave a dinner tonight for members of the delegation, together with representatives in the house and senate of the four states of Georgia, Alabama, South Carolina and Georgia.

The army engineering board will be asked to approve a report previously prepared by the district division engineers recommending a government expenditure of approximately $2,000,000 in building the proposed lock and dam improvements to navigation. Construction of the dam would be undertaken on a site 11 miles from Columbus, forming an important step in a general program for giving the Chattahoochee navigable facilities.

John Wesley Weekes, of Decatur, one of the leaders behind the improvement program, came to Washington to join the delegation.

To Present Appeal. At a hearing before the army board tomorrow, the case for the Chattahoochee development advocates will be presented by Senator Walter F. George, Representative Stephen Pace, of Americus, and Robert Elliott, of Columbus, member of the state legislature from Muscogee county. The board will be urged to give its final approval of the project in time to permit congress to incorporate funds for the development in one of the remaining appropriation bills this session.

Others in the group coming to Washington to attend the hearings include Alvah Chapman, editor of the Columbus Enquirer; Ed McMurrah, member of the Columbus city commission; Frank Williams, of West Point; Frank G. Lumpkin, Walter Richards, W. C. Bradley, Walter Pike and Royce Kernshaw, engineer, all of Columbus. Alabama and Florida will be represented by a number of others in the Chattahoochee area.

Malcom Orders Students To Quit Thumbing Rides

The practice of students of "thumbing a ride" to and from school is being frowned upon by the police as a deterrent to the smooth flow of traffic and in future high school hitchhikers who persist in hopping rides will find themselves at odds with the law.

Captain Jack Malcom, head of the traffic bureau, in announcing the proposed "war" on the schoolboys, declared that hitchhiking constituted a hazard and interfered greatly with the traffic safety program sponsored by the police department.

"Apparently we have the situation well in hand," Captain Malcom said, "but we can afford to let up at this time. Beside jaywalking and the other hazards confronting motorists where pedestrians are concerned, the practice of students 'thumbing' rides also constitutes a menace and we must put a stop to it."

The traffic official said that police also had been instructed to caution schoolboys in the manner in which they operated bicycles and automobiles while traveling to and from school.

SUBSIDIZED EXPORT OF COTTON FOUGHT

George Introduces Resolution Barring Below-Cost Sale During Crisis.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS. Constitution Staff Correspondent. WASHINGTON, March 20.—Senator Walter F. George, of Georgia, today notified the upper chamber that as soon as the administration's reorganization bill is out of the way he would call up his resolution designed to prevent the sale of government-owned cotton in foreign markets at a price below actual cost.

The George resolution was introduced today with the request that it lie on the vice president's table until debate on executive reorganization is concluded.

The resolution provides "that it is the sense of the senate that pending the world crisis no American cotton be sold to foreign purchasers at a price below the actual cost of said cotton to the government of the United States, and that the secretary of agriculture is directed to negotiate no sales of American cotton to the foreign trade below its cost to this government without the approval of the congress."

Senator Ellison D. Smith, chairman of the agricultural committee of the upper house, said the resolution would have the full support of the senate and house cotton blocs and that it stood an excellent chance of being passed.

Senator George explained that with the world faced with an international crisis "of the gravest magnitude," it was necessary for the congress to take the initiative in saving the south's big money crop from being a drug on the market. The domestic market, he pointed out, has reached its lowest ebb in years with export trade in the staple practically disappeared.

SCHOOL PROBLEM GIVEN TO COUNTIES

man, of the state board, said that the board is attaching to its communications to the superintendents two letters from State Auditor Zack Arnold revealing the plight of state school finances.

Meanwhile Governor Rivers took under advisement an appeal from a group of school leaders to adopt a plan which amounts to virtual diversion of other state funds. This school group, headed by Jere A. Wells, Fulton county superintendent, laid before the chief executive an initiative used statute, adopted in 1919, which they asserted gives the Governor authority to turn over to the schools a full 50 per cent of all the state's income.

Some observers said they felt that the general appropriations bills and other acts enacted since the 1919 statute was put on the books invalidate the provisions of the act. All new laws in Georgia contain a repealing clause which provides that "all laws or parts of laws in conflict herewith are hereby repealed."

The state board's letter, signed by Vice Chairman Foreman and addressed to all superintendents, follows:

"We regret to advise you that the state auditing department informs us that there will be no additional funds available to pay on the seven-month school program for the balance of the school year 1938-39.

"We are attaching hereto copies of two letters from the state auditor which explain why we cannot furnish as much as we did last year and also that funds for this school year already have been exhausted.

"We, therefore, deeply regret that we are forced to advise you that no further funds except the equalization fund will be available for the school year 1938-39. The continued operation of your schools will be the responsibility of your local school authorities."

The letters from State Auditor Arnold were the letter he addressed last week to Representative W. D. Tripp, of Polk county, in which he informed the house of representatives that all state school monies for the year had been exhausted and another letter to the board, written yesterday, in which Arnold officially informed the board that the 56 per cent total had been paid. The percentage is the same as that set up for other departments operating under general funds, which Arnold said would not total more than $12,500,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30 next.

To Get Ruling. Superintendent Wells said that the Governor was calling up Attorney General Ellis Arnall for a ruling on the 1919 law. The Fulton superintendent said he believed the Governor had authority to provide the funds needed to carry on school operations. Mr. Wells said, however, that he did not know if the funds were available even though the Governor decided on carrying out the statute. The schools need approximately $4,500,000 to carry on for the balance of the year.

"That law provided that 50 per cent of all state revenues, from whatever source derived, shall be devoted to the common schools of Georgia," Wells said.

"This has been called to the Governor's attention and he is seeking a ruling from the attorney general on it with a view, we believe, of taking whatever action is necessary to preserve the state's educational system."

"When I appeared in the conference during the day, I told them I do not believe it is right to ask a single teacher in Georgia to teach for nothing, but did suggest that if we are to be forced to close half the schools next year because of lack of funds, we should operate the full year this year and then not operate at all next year."

Matter of Contrast. "This would save what the schools have done this year. We would be better off by taking full advantage of operating full time this year and not opening next year than if we tried to operate on half time for two years."

"I also raised the question of whether a teacher's contract with a board of education means anything. It seems to me if a teacher is to be held to her part of the contract, a board likewise would be liable if a teacher performed her portion of the contract faithfully."

There were reports that a test case will be made with a view of ascertaining the liability of boards of education where teachers work and the board does not pay the salaries specified in the contract.

G. E. A. WILL STUDY FINANCIAL PROBLEMS. Financial plight of Georgia's schools yesterday seemed destined to figure prominently in the annual convention of the Georgia Education Association which convenes in Atlanta Thursday.

A special organization meeting of the board members will consider finances, W. J. Andrews, superintendent of Stephens county schools and president of the association, said. He added he expected one or more of the general sessions to be devoted to the financial problems.

Although the financial situation had not been included on the original program, this phase of the school program swept into the limelight when the legislature adjourned without voting taxes necessary to carry out the state's educational program.

Andrews said the three-day convention would be the association's seventy-fourth. He predicted "an overwhelming number" of the state's 21,000 teachers would attend.

Included on the program will be Dr. Allen A. Stockdale, of the National Manufacturers' Association; Dr. Joseph S. Kornfeld, author and former minister to Persia; Dr. D. O. Oberbauer, professor of physical education at Ohio State University, and Dr. W. R. McConnell, of the department of education, Miami University, Oxford, Ohio.

Bad Breath May Show You Need This Help!

Bad breath is sometimes due to decaying food particles between and around the teeth and it is often caused by constipation. Two things are sure about it. It offends. You ought not to tolerate it. To neglect Bad Breath due to constipation may invite a host of the other symptoms of sluggishness: headache, biliousness, loss of appetite and energy. What's the use letting constipation slow you up when it is so easily relieved by an all vegetable product known to thousands everywhere?

A little spicy, aromatic BLACK-DRAUGHT on your tongue tonight; in the morning there's an evacuation that's generally thorough, complete; you feel fine again!

The quick, satisfying relief from constipation's ills which users of BLACK-DRAUGHT report is due principally to its unusual action, its principal ingredient is an "intestinal tonic-laxative"; it helps impart tone to lazy bowel muscles.

Next time a laxative is needed, try BLACK-DRAUGHT. Millions of packages used. 25 to 40 doses; 25c.—(adv.)

City Studies Improvement Program

Water Works and Incinerator Work Would Be Provided on Passage of Constitution Change.

By FRANK DRAKE.

Plans for improvements to the Atlanta water works and the erection of a new incinerator were being studied yesterday by city officials under the provisions of a constitutional amendment passed by the general assembly.

The constitutional amendment, to be voted on in the state-wide June 8 election, will allow the water department to issue revenue certificates against its 10 per cent reserve improvement fund and for the sanitary department to issue certificates against revenue gained by the sale of steam.

W. Zode Smith, water department head, asserted issuance of $600,000 worth of certificates would enable the city to build new filters and improve the entire distribution system by matching federal funds. How much could be obtained from the federal government to match the $600,000 could not be estimated now, Smith said.

H. J. Cates, sanitary chief, declared that issuance of $275,000 in certificates against the steam revenue would enable the city to build a $750,000 incinerator, which is badly needed.

The water works improvement program has been provided for over a period of five years, but Smith said the authority to issue the certificates would see this program completed several years ahead of schedule.

The city this year has purchased a new 40,000-gallon pump and last year built huge filtration basins.

The sanitary department last year sold $30,000 worth of steam manufactured in the burning of the city's refuse.

It is this fund which would be used to retire the revenue certificates and to provide funds for matching federal money.

By the issuance of the certificates, both Smith and Cates hope to obtain loans and grants from the government.

Cates declared yesterday that the 25-year-old present incinerator may "not hold up through this coming summer."

The constitutional amendment, sponsored through the assembly by all members of the Fulton delegation, is purely local, applying only to the city of Atlanta.

However, it must be voted on by the electorate of the state. Mayor Hartsfield said that an intensive campaign will be waged to notify the voters that the amendment is only for Atlanta and that it will result in necessary improvements to city services.

AUDITORIUM PARK EXCHANGE OKAYED

White to authorize Mayor Hartsfield to apply for federal funds.

Streets Closed.

Council also took initial steps toward the building of a great medical center around Grady hospital by the adoption of an ordinance closing parts of Butler and Armstrong streets to create an unbroken plot of approximately four square blocks.

Mayor Hartsfield's veto of nine small salary raises was overridden by general council with only two dissenting votes. All of the raises, however, were for persons earning $100 a month or less, with two exceptions.

Only Alderman Robert Carpenter and Mayor Pro Tem. G. Dan Bridges voted against the old city hall-auditorium park swap. Bridges explaining he felt the city was not getting enough in return for the site at the northwest corner of Marietta and Forsyth streets.

Mayor Hartsfield, upon signing the council ordinance, will be authorized to contract with officials of a company to be named the "Edgar Company" for the transfer of title of the two plots.

It is provided that if the old city hall site is sold by September 15, all net profit shall be given to the city and that if it is not sold by March 15, 1940, then the Edgar Company will proceed in developing the property itself.

Taxes on the old city hall site are waived for 1939 and 1940 and taxes on the block bounded by Courtland, Gilmer and Edgewood avenue are waived for 1939.

The city agreed to widen all three streets around the park by 10 feet.

Plans for wrecking existing buildings and beautifying the park will be made as soon as the contracts are all signed, it was said.

White said the $50,000 will be used to match WPA or PWA funds for modernizing the front section of the auditorium, which this year will house some of the largest conventions in Atlanta's entire history.

City Radio Station.

He said plans call for establishing a kitchen and banquet halls in the front part as well as building a radio station there.

The Georgia Power Company's offer to substitute trackless trolley buses on Piedmont and Stewart avenue was referred to the public works committee for an open hearing.

Councilman Frank Wilson said he was afraid that a trackless trolley could not use a narrow part of Pelham road, which is in his ward.

Other matters considered by council included:

Referred to committee a resolution by Councilman George Lyle seeking to use the $50,000 received in the property exchange for street improvements, referred to the public works committee the request of the North Atlanta Civic League that the name of Luckie street and Hemphill drive be changed to Northside drive; abolished the position of physician in the health department (a vacant position) and set up the $75 monthly salary for a clerk; approved the retirement of Mary

Will Have All World Know She's No Strip Teaser

"Never, never, never again!" (at least not on the stage) bespoke Dorothy Lamour yesterday as she tore to shreds her sarong, such as that at the left, which has figured so prominently in her rise to film stardom. Miss Lamour (who is no strip teaser) had words with a theater manager when she sought to substitute a sarong evening dress, right, during her appearance in New York.

Dorothy Lamour Bans Sarong In Row With Theater Manager

'It Isn't Nice To Wear a Thing Like That—It's Just an Overdressed Strip Tease,' She Cries, Calling for 'Slinky' Gown of Own Design.

NEW YORK, March 20.—(UP) Dorothy Lamour said so long to her sarong today, tore it up, stamped on the pieces and said she wouldn't wear the nasty thing ever again, at least not on the stage.

Miss Lamour is scheduled to open Wednesday for two weeks of personal appearance at the Paramount theater, her first stage appearance. The management had suggested that she wear, say, a sarong.

"I don't have to wear it and I won't," Dorothy declared in her hotel suite today, kicking the shreds into the fireplace. "It isn't nice to wear a thing like that on the stage. It's just an overdressed strip tease."

"In the movies it's different. There you have a story to follow and the sarong fits into the setting and is part of the story. But I might as well walk out on the stage in a bathing suit."

Bob Weisman, Paramount manager, was advised of the crisis and said it was just a case of temperamental, just merely temperamental.

Miss Lamour, he said, will positively wear a sarong.

"We got a contract," he said. Dorothy said she might have a contract but she also had a lawyer.

"I've had my lawyer look at it and he says I don't have to wear anything if I don't want to," Dorothy said.

Weisman said the lawyer couldn't have read the fine print down near the bottom.

What she would like to wear, Dorothy said, is the sarong evening dress she has designed. "It's slinky," she explained. "It fits tight and has a long skirt which is slit up to here."

She said she had been fighting about the sarong for "four or five days" now and was so mad at Weisman she wouldn't even speak to him over the telephone. Herbie Kay, her orchestra leader husband, is coming to New York to see her, Dorothy said, and will take up the cudgels for her.

"He doesn't mind my wearing the sarong," she said, "but if I tell him I don't want to wear it he'll stick up for me."

EDUCATORS CLOSE PROBLEM PARLEY

Sanford Calls for Revision of Textbook for Use in System.

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., March 20.—Administrative heads of the 16 educational units of the University System of Georgia today concluded a two-day discussion of reports and routine matters after hearing an appeal by Chancellor S. V. Sanford for the rewriting of a textbook on Georgia's problems.

Such a book, the chancellor said, would teach students the problems of the state and their suggested solutions. "We can build Georgia into a great state," he said, "through our young men and women."

He further suggested that this program of informing Georgia of its problems should be through an organization composed of persons from education, religion, agriculture, industry, capital, labor and all related fields.

Dean R. P. Brooks, of the School of Commerce, University of Georgia, urged continuation of the university system council's committee assigned to study certain problems in agriculture and industry.

Dean Hoy Taylor, of Georgia State College for Women, announced the continued use of the same foundation material now in use.

Dr. John Wade, University of Georgia, announced a uniform textbook, plus parallel studies, will be used for the coming year.

President Harmon Caldwell, University of Georgia, suggested the formation and authorization of committees to better perfect the university system.

Dean L. L. Hendren, University of Georgia, reported on the system's uniform calendar.

Dean W. D. Cocking, of the College of Education, University of Georgia, reported on the demands of higher education.

Garner Leads for 1940 Nomination, Elliott Roosevelt Says in Talk

FORT WORTH, Texas, March 20.—(AP)—Vice President Garner was described as "in the driver's seat right now," well in the lead as a likely Democratic candidate for the presidency in the 1940 elections," by Elliott Roosevelt in his semi-weekly broadcast tonight.

Announcing a "custom" under which he will occasionally discuss Texas citizens who have influenced state, national and world affairs, the son of President Roosevelt selected for the first of the series Vice President Garner and Fred H. Vahlsing, at present of New York city, who operates a 10,000-acre truck garden in the Rio Grande valley.

Young Roosevelt stressed Garner's simple home life at Uvalde, his reticence toward public speaking, and the power he carries in legislative matters, a power which grew steadily from the time Garner went to congress in 1903.

Commenting on differences between President Roosevelt and Garner, the young Roosevelt remarked:

"There is little room for doubt that Mr. Garner and the President of the United States have traveled separate roads since the winter of 1927. Reports have it that the vice president became so incensed over the administration's handling of the sit-down strike situation that he quit Washington and returned to Uvalde for a six-month vacation. Since his return, his opinions have been at variance with the President's as to the path being taken by the Democratic party.

"Garner is a party man, and seeing a return to conservatism as evidenced by the election results of last fall, he is reported to have requested frequently that the administration sense the trend and bring the Democratic party into a more conservative alignment.

"As to the results thus far and the future attainments of the conservative element as opposed to the New Deal, I do not feel qualified to voice an opinion. This much, however, is certain. John Garner is in the driver's seat right now, well in the lead as a likely Democratic candidate for the presidency in the 1940 elections."

Mild Influenza Is Widespread Through State

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Officials of the State Department of Health today reported a mild type of influenza was widespread over Georgia.

School children have been especially affected but officials said they have received no reports of schools being forced to close because of the flu.

Dr. C. D. Bowdoin, state epidemiologist, said the health department had not received requests for help in combating the ailment and that it was believed the disease was of a mild type.

United States Formally Condemns Conquest of Czecho-Slovakia by Hitler

WASHINGTON ACTS TO CURB GERMANY IN EASTWARD PUSH

Neutrality Law Revision Speeded by Developments in Europe; Prague Legation Closed.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—(UP)—The United States today formally condemned Germany's military conquest of Czecho-Slovakia and emphasized its displeasure by moving to enact "measures short of war" to spur the European democracies in their defiance of Nazi aggression.

Acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles, on behalf of President Roosevelt and the nation, dispatched a formal note of protest to the German embassy here in which he was understood to have reiterated his denunciation of the Nazi government's "wantonly lawless" in dismembering the post-war republic.

A few hours earlier Welles ordered Wilbur J. Carr, United States minister to Czecho-Slovakia, to close the Prague legation, while the Commerce Department ordered its commercial attache at the Czech capital to shut his office, thus virtually cutting off all trade intercourse with Germany and its new territorial acquisitions.

The rapidly unfolding European developments speeded congressional action on neutrality law revision which, according to Senator Key Pittman, Democrat, Nevada, would place the United States in better position to sell munitions to Great Britain and France in case of war.

Pittman introduced new neutrality legislation, on which hearings will begin Wednesday, that would free Mr. Roosevelt from many of the restrictions of the present law, bolster the administration's application of economic pressure on aggressors, and strengthen military ties between the United States and Latin America.

Meantime Joseph P. Kennedy, United States ambassador to Great Britain, was in close touch with the British foreign office and kept Mr. Roosevelt informed on the stiffening resistance of the European democracies to Hitler's eastward push.

It was doubted that the United States would take any direct part in a concerted move to "stop Hitler" other than to continue invoking sanctions such as the placing of the German-held Czech states on the foreign trade blacklist and imposing 25 per cent penalty duties against Nazi goods entering this country.

Other developments:

1. The house passed a bill authorizing the government to lend agricultural, tariff and immigration experts to Latin American countries as part of the administration's program to head off Nazi-Fascist encroachment in the western hemisphere.

2. Senator Pat McCarran, Democrat, Nevada, introduced a bill to authorize a two-year expenditure of $7,300,000 by the Civil Aeronautics Authority to train reserve civilian pilots in connection with the army and navy aviation expansion program.

3. Latin-American diplomats predicted sharper trade rivalry between the United States and Germany for South American markets as an aftermath of the "measures short of war" policy applied against the Nazi government.

FRENCH SOLDIERS RULE DAMASCUS
Troops Seize Police Power From Syria.
DAMASCUS, Syria, March 20.—(P)—French troops moved into the streets of Syria's disorder-torn cities today under an order from Paris to take all police powers from the Syrian government.

Demonstrators in Damascus stoned the troops as they marched into the bazaar quarter, but order soon was restored. Soldiers were placed at strategic centers and before all government buildings.

The military occupation followed upon renewed rioting by Syrians angered over France's failure to ratify the 1936 treaty giving full independence to Syria, which is an autonomous state under French mandate.

MAURICE GOODMAN DIES.
NEW YORK, March 20.—(P)—Maurice Goodman, 55, former vice president and general counsel of the Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation, died last night.

Oil—the lifeblood of a modern military machine—is one of the prime objectives of the German "drang nach Osten." The Rumanian fields are the richest in central Europe and like water in the desert for the Nazis. To defend them . . .

King Carol II has a potential armed force of 2,000,000 men, of which these are typical. The army is comparatively well equipped, but hardly a match for the German juggernaut. They defend not only the oil fields for an infant industrial development . . .

Of which the great steel plants at Resita are an example. These plants turn out much of the armament for the defense of Rumania and its oil fields and the rich, rolling wheat country.

DOUGLAS IS NAMED TO HIGHEST COURT

who has differed with the New Deal on many questions. To Borah, in fact, was entrusted an important phase of the preliminary work some weeks ago. Western senators, already disappointed during this session by the appointment of Felix Frankfurter, of Massachusetts, were conducting their drive for the choice of a man from their area. Douglas was born in Minnesota and reared in California and Oregon, but his adult career had been in the east. Borah quietly eased the way with his western colleagues.

At one point it was proposed that due to his western background, Douglas be named as coming from the west, but Senator Norris, Independent, Nebraska, always in the know and listened to when supreme court appointments are pending, stepped on that particular strategem. Consequently, the President nominated "William O. Douglas, of Connecticut." Douglas came to Washington from New Haven, where he held a law professorship at Yale.

On the court he will succeed Associate Justice Louis D. Brandeis, who retired February 13. With the appointment, Mr. Roosevelt will have named four of the eight members of the tribunal against which he waged such unremitting warfare two years ago. His previous appointees have been Associate Justices Hugo L. Black, Stanley Reed and Felix Frankfurter.

Son of Missionaries.
Douglas, a thin, sandy-haired man who can become extremely sharp-tongued when he considers that the occasion warrants it, has had a varied career. His parents, missionaries, were poor. To obtain money for his education he worked as a farm hand, as a junk dealer and as a janitor. And after being graduated from Whitman College, Walla Walla, Wash., he came east, and landed in New York city in 1922 on a freight train with 36 cents in his pockets. Then, he proceeded to work his way through the law school of Columbia University.

After that, he spent two years with a financial district law firm, and then returned to Columbia as a lecturer. In 1927 he transferred to Yale where he later became sterling professor of law, reported to be the highest paid post in the school.

Then, in 1934, Joseph P. Kennedy, the first chairman of SEC, read an analysis of corporate reorganization procedure written by Douglas. He sent for the author, and soon thereafter, the latter, on leave from Yale, became a member of the commission. James Landis, similarly on leave from Harvard, succeeded Kennedy. In 1937 Landis went back to Harvard and Douglas became chairman. But beforehand, he had given indications that he by no means approved of all the ways of Wall

CAROL SUMMONS MILITARY LEADERS

Emergency Session Follows Conference With British Minister.

BUCHAREST, March 20.—(UP)—King Carol II tonight summoned his military leaders into emergency council at the royal palace following unconfirmed reports that four columns of the German army were marching across Slovakia toward the Rumanian frontier.

Rumania's fears of a swift blow at her frontier, either by Germany or neighboring Hungary, led to food hoarding and a small run on banks by depositors.

A few hours before he summoned the military council, King Carol received British Minister Sir Reginald Hoare, who told him of efforts under way to form an international bloc which would support Rumania in resisting any Nazi aggression.

Increasing tension along the Rumanian-Hungarian border was aggravated by a dispatch from Budapest indicating that Chancellor Hitler had asked permission to move German troops across Hungary.

Demonstrations and disorders in Transylvania, once Hungarian territory, were reported. The Budapest radio station was alleged to be broadcasting messages to the Hungarian minority in Rumania assuring it of "forthcoming liberation."

Rumania had poured about 200,000 troops into the border areas and is prepared to call 2,000,000 men to the colors.

Hungary was understood to have about 500,000 soldiers on war footing, many of them along the border areas.

The British minister had a long conference with King Carol at the those which we have been accustomed to give our people, but those which have for the past two years first been enjoyed."

To substantiate his argument that the frequently charged "extravagance" of his administration could not be the cause of the present troubles, Rivers said the general fund (which supports all the services which he said would be crippled) this year was $12,312,000. In 1926 it was $12,518,000 despite the fact that the general fund this year was called upon to support old-age pensions, support more mentally sick and carry a heavier educational load than it had in 1926.

Warns of Future.
"I do not believe there are as many as 25 members of the house of representatives and the state senate that would today be willing to vote to cut the school term now on our statute books, to lessen the pension benefits provided in our social security program, to reduce the public health services," the Governor said.

Accepting this as the fact and insisting "economy" drives could not nearly close the gap between the money already appropriated and the money available for these services, Rivers called on his listeners to realize:

"Taxes, after all, are merely the price you pay for things you get from your government. And, while taxes are distasteful and there is always an instinctive resentment against taxes, there are worse things than taxes.

"Georgia is shortly going to experience some of these things worse than taxes.

"Closing our schoolhouse doors is worse than taxes.

"Confining our insane people in jails is worse than taxes.

"Letting our tubercular, our cancer-afflicted and other sick people die without medical attention is worse than taxes.

"Letting our aged and our blind and our dependent children suffer is worse than taxes.

"Tragic" Situation.
"It is tragic that we have to have an actual demonstration of these things worse than taxes before we can revise our tax system to meet these needs we must meet by government if we are to be a progressive state and a great people."

"It is tragic because this actual demonstration so vitally affects, adversely, the lives of so many of our people. But since we are paying this high price for this demonstration, let's at least make the most of it and let's lead our people to a permanent solution. That is my purpose."

As part of the program to achieve this permanent solution, the Governor suggested revision of the present system of having part of the state funds allocated by law to the various departments were little affected by crises such as the present one.

He expressed his conviction that the services trying to do some $21,000,000 worth of work on the $12-

Franco Wire Lauds Hitler; Duce Fails To

BERLIN, March 20.—(P)—Generalissimo Franco, of Nationalist Spain, has sent congratulations to Chancellor Hitler for "the peaceful reincorporation of old Reich districts within the borders of Germany," it was announced officially tonight.

Hitler sent his thanks to Franco for the message.

Some circles in Berlin found it interesting that no congratulatory telegram from Premier Mussolini has been announced here. They speculated on the possibility that Hitler's most recent excursion into map changing was not so pleasing to Il Duce as his previous efforts, which did bring congratulatory messages from Rome.

palace. Hoare had talked earlier with Foreign Minister Grigore Gafencu.

Sir Reginald was understood to have given the King assurances of British economic aid, to be worked out by a British mission which will be sent to Bucharest immediately, and to have described the plan to establish a "stop Hitler" bloc.

When the British minister left the palace the King summoned his military and political advisors.

It was revealed in responsible quarters that King Carol II's government is negotiating with the Soviet Union, simultaneously concluding a German-Rumanian trade protocol increasing in some instances trade with Germany by as much as 25 per cent.

The new German trade agreement supplements a pact signed last November and represents the first move on Rumania's part in "more or less" entering the orbit of German influence as result of Hitler's seizure of Czecho-Slovakia.

300,000 in the general fund "are more important services than the services that will not have to be cut."

"These fundamental services—like education and health work—ought to have a tax levied and allotted especially to them for their support, so that all government services will be on an allocation basis, or else the allocation method ought to be abandoned and all the money put into a general fund, and, from it, these major services ought to have first claim."

House Economy Group.
Another approach to the desired permanent solution was the question of reduction in overhead. In this connection he reviewed the work of the house economy committee briefly, saying the administration had sponsored it but found "this committee was being used against its will as a sounding board for partisanship and political persecution."

"We saw that our sincere efforts to co-operate with the economy committee were being twisted and distorted into an effort to make the people believe there were extravagances enough to balance the budget."

"So much play was given to these tactics that our efforts to cut down overhead expenses were diverted and resulted in an actual cutting down of the services to the people, rather than simply cutting overhead costs."

He said in view of this political "distortion" in the house inquiry, the senate moved for an economy investigation to be handled by business experts named by the Georgia Bankers' Association.

Rivers said he planned to meet soon with the officers and directors of the association to ask them to put into effect this resolution.

"I am going to follow this resolution," the Governor said, "and ask this business group to use these men they now have employed in their own businesses in making a detailed investigation of the overhead operation of the state government."

"I am going to ask that they send these trained men into every department of the state government, and to point out to me every possible saving that can be made in cutting down salaries or cutting of employees, in cutting expense accounts, in rents, telephones, telegraph bills and in every other item."

Promises Co-operation.
"As fast as this group completes an investigation of a department and makes recommendations to me for these cuts, then I expect to carry out their recommendations in every way possible."

Rivers expressed hope the association would accept the invitation which will be extended "without any strings and without any reservations about it, and every book of resolutions in every department of the state government will be made available to them."

He added if the house committee, prolonged by independent resolution of the representatives desired to duplicate the work of this business group, I will co-operate with them in every way possible, so long as their efforts can be confined to actual investigation and cutting down of overhead expense, but I cannot and will not be party to permitting the house committee to be used to conduct campaign to elect somebody Governor in 1940."

A wry note was added to his economy pledges when he asked "the co-operation of the people in not insisting on restoring the salaries or the jobs when these cuts are made."

The Governor closed with the homely observation that "I ain't mad at nobody," asked help in solving the problem on a basis of common logic and promised "further reports from time to time."

18,000 ARRESTED IN CZECH MOP-UP

150 Copy Telephone Conversations; Jokes Bring Incarceration.

PRAGUE, March 20.—(UP)—Nazi secret police, proceeding with a thorough "mop-up" of persons opposed to the regime of Adolf Hitler, have arrested 18,000 persons in Bohemia and Moravia since German troops occupied these provinces, it was estimated tonight.

One woman was arrested today in a street car because she remarked that German uniforms looked sloppy. Another woman was arrested by a man, who was hiding his face behind a Czech-language newspaper, for facetiously remarking that the Germans were starting to improve Prague by tearing up the streets, as in Berlin.

It was reliably reported that in the Prague telephone exchange 150 persons were engaged in listening to and copying telephone conversations, seeking evidence for the secret police.

THOMAS DIXON, 75, WEDS ASSISTANT

Second Marriage for Author of 'The Clansman.'

RALEIGH, N. C., March 20.—(P)—Thomas Dixon, 75-year-old author, and Miss May Donovan, 44, his literary assistant, were married here today.

Mrs. Dixon, a native of Cleveland, Ohio, has been assisting in his writings 18 years.

The bridegroom is the author of "The Clansman," a novel which later was filmed as "The Birth of a Nation." He now is clerk of federal district court here.

Dixon's first wife died in 1937.

Carpatho-Ukraine Under Czarist Flag

Official Discloses Hope To Help Free Oppressed Brothers in Soviet Ukraine, Fight Reds.

UNGVAR, Hungary, March 20. (AP)—The flag of Czarist Russia was hoisted today over this capital of Carpatho-Ukraine, annexed by Hungary and granted political autonomy after the break-up of Czechoslovakia.

Groups of White Russian officers, wearing Czarist uniforms, gathered before the posters on which the Hungarian government announced autonomy.

The posters were printed both in Russian and Hungarian languages. "Sub-Carpathian Russia (Carpatho-Ukraine) can be expected actively to fight Bolshevism," said one Hungarian official.

"They hope they may have a chance to help free their oppressed brothers in Ukraine proper."

Hungary has adhered to the anti-Comintern pact with Germany, Italy and Japan and it was explained that the autonomous government here would of course take an active part.

The German consulate at Chust, former capital of Carpatho-Ukraine, has been accused by Czech leaders of working to further Hitler's plan to use Carpatho-Ukraine as a springboard to seize the Ukrainian territory of Poland, Rumania and Soviet Russia.

Consulate Remains. The German consulate, with 30 officials, will continue operating, it was announced, but may be moved here from Chust.

(Grand Duke Vladimir, 21-year-old pretender to the throne of the Russians, was reported in London newspapers last December to have a place in Hitler's plans for the Soviet Ukraine.)

(These published reports said ardent White Russians planned to gain Hitler's support for an up-setting of Communist rule in the Soviet Ukraine.)

(The Grand Duke, however, refused to take these reports seriously. He visited Berlin December 19 but said he did not see Hitler.)

Chust was the capital of Carpatho-Ukraine from the time Hungary annexed part of the territory after the Vienna award of November 2, until she took it all last week.

City of 27,000. Ungvar was the capital of the territory during the Czech-Slovak administration. It is a city of 27,000 and has a large parliament building and other government headquarters constructed during the Czech regime.

Officials said they expected it would take two months or more to work out a definite statute of autonomy for the district.

The territory will have the same economic and financial regime as Hungary, however.

The population of Carpatho-Ukraine is given by Hungarians at 604,000 and Russian is said by them to be the dominant language.

The Hungarian army command said the "last resistance" by Czechs and stich men (Ukrainian Nationalist irregulars) had been overcome in the district today.

They said 200 Ukrainian "terrorists" were killed, and 150 prisoners were brought here.

Three hundred Czech and Slovak soldiers who surrendered through their officers marched through Ungvar on the way to their homes in Slovakia and Bohemia.

Incorporated Jitterbugs To Swing It in Chicago

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 10. (AP)—Official recognition has been given jitterbugs by the state of Illinois.

A non-profit corporation charter was issued to the Jitterbug Club of Chicago. Incorporators said the club's 25 members originate swing dances.

A nine-power bloc to encircle German aggression was suggested last night by Great Britain. Welded in the bloc would be Britain, France, Soviet Russia, Poland, Rumania, Yugoslavia, Turkey, Bulgaria and Greece (indicated by straight lines). Opposed to this united front would be the Nazi allies, Italy, little Albania and Hungary (indicated by dark slanting lines).

DALADIER ORDERS SECRET MASSING

Russia and the United States already have done.

2.—Proclaim the readiness of the nine nations, which form a ring around Germany and the nations in the path of his "drang nach Osten" (drive to the east), to oppose any new act of aggression.

3.—Proclaim the readiness of the nine governments to remain in constant consultation with a view to organizing for "common action" in case of a new emergency.

To War Footing. The French government rapidly was being brought to a war footing exceeding that ordered during last September's crisis.

Soviet Russia's proposal for an immediate six-power conference—backed by the strength of a peacetime Red army boasting 2,500,000 troops—would bring together Britain, France, Russia, Turkey, Rumania and Poland.

The Russians asked that the conference be held in Bucharest, as a further impressive warning to Hitler.

Poland's attitude toward joining the anti-Hitler drive, which would force her from her position "on the fence" between Germany and Russia, will be sounded out when Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax confers Tuesday noon with the Polish ambassador, Count Douard Raczynski.

"Stop Hitler" Moves. The "stop Hitler" drive developed amid a series of alarming developments from the Baltic to the Mediterranean and the Atlantic to the Caspian sea, including:

1. Lord Halifax revealed that the Nazi seizure of Czechoslovakia appeared to have been enforced under threat of violence and that the Czechs capitulated "in order to save their people from swift destruction by aerial bombardments."

2. Announcements by Oliver Stanley, president of the British Board of Trade, that a commercial mission is being sent to Rumania to oppose Germany's domination of the nation along Hitler's "drang nach Osten" (drive to the east) and Nazi efforts to obtain there more than half of their wartime oil needs of 20,000,000 tons.

3. Rumania, fearing imminent revisionist demands from neighboring Hungary, put 200,000 troops on the frontier and prepared to mobilize 2,000,000 men if necessary. Resigned to Nazi penetration, the Rumanian government prepared to sign a new trade pact scheduled with Germany providing for 25 per cent increases in some instances.

4.—Hungary, having seized Car-patho-Ukraine at the eastern tip of what was Czechoslovakia, massed an estimated 500,000 troops along the Rumanian frontier where a clash between Rumanians and Hungarians was reported.

5.—Lithuania's foreign minister, Juozas Urbys, conferred in Berlin with Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop regarding the fate of Memel where demonstrations are being staged by the 87 per cent German population, marked by shouts of "We want to go home to the Reich!" Hitler conferred with his cabinet ministers and military leaders on means of dealing with the developing "stop Hitler" drive.

6.—Britain learned that Hitler has completed his fortification of the Rock of Heligoland, in further repudiation of the treaty of Versailles, but said that "the contravention of the treaty is not a matter to be taken up unilaterally" between Britain and the Reich.

Financial Blockade. 7.—Britain took leadership in establishing a financial blockade against Germany when Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir John Simon ordered banks and other financial institutions to refuse to surrender any Czech-owned balances or securities without authorization of the Bank of England. The ban, applying to gold and other Czech credits which Germany might demand, found co-operation in the United States and France which also have refused to recognize Hitler's conquest.

Viscount Halifax told the house of lords in a denunciation of the Nazi seizure of Czechoslovakia that international collaboration was necessary because "every neighbor of Germany is uncertain of the morrow" and the whole world awaits Hitler's next blow.

The Russian conference proposal was said to have been submitted to Sir William Seeds, British ambassador in Moscow, by Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinoff.

King George Informed. Lord Halifax was believed to have reported the Russian plan to King George VI when he went to Buckingham Palace before his appearance in the house of lords.

The British cabinet, anxious to learn how far Russia with her standing army of 2,500,000 men will go in opposing Hitler, was understood to have discussed the proposal in a two-hour session today after Soviet Ambassador Ivan M. Maisky visited the foreign office.

NAZI AMBASSADOR TO PARIS RECALLED

Berlin Expects Early Return of Memel Territory to the Reich.

BERLIN, March 20.—(AP)—Well-informed foreign circles foresaw tonight the likelihood of an early return of the Memel territory to rapidly expanding Germany.

The impression prevailed that Memel's 150,000 residents would join the Nazi nation as soon as they put their desire in the form of a vote.

The Memel Landtag (parliament) meets Saturday.

This expectation of German-Memel union followed upon a conference here between the foreign ministers of Germany and Lithuania.

Count Johannes von Welczek, German ambassador to Paris, meanwhile was ordered "to return to Berlin to report," countering France's action last week in summoning back to Paris the French ambassador to Berlin, Robert Coulondre.

Calling home of the German ambassadors to Paris and London—Dr. Herbert von Dirksen, ambassador to London, was summoned home Saturday—and rejection Saturday of British and French protests against German occupation of Bohemia and Moravia "is not a mere formality," Diplomatich Politische Korrespondenz, information service of the foreign office, said tonight.

It adds that "the summons to the ambassadors expressed the displeasure of the Reich government at the attitude, especially that of Britain, toward solution of the Czechoslovak question."

"The attitude of the British press and the utterances of British politicians and the British Prime Minister have caused extraordinary resentment," the service continued. "Germany has at the request of the legal Czechoslovak government cleared up a situation that was unbearable, especially to Germany, and has arranged an affair which concerned Germany exclusively."

"England has responded to this, in speeches and in the press, with incitements which in their lack of responsibility toward European co-operation can hardly be surpassed."

"The attempt to mobilize Rumania by means of lies and to start with this state a new Benes course of policy against Germany can only be described as criminal."

OFFICIAL U. S. STUDY SHOWS NAZI STRAIN

Commerce Department Memorandum Details Trend Toward Inflation in Reich

WASHINGTON, March 20.—(AP)—An official Commerce Department memorandum said today that German finances were "showing evidences of expansion and strain."

Some private experts have, from time to time, speculated on the possibility that Germany's vast expenditures for armaments and public works might eventually result in inflation.

The memorandum, which was identified in a release to the press as having been submitted to Secretary Hopkins, said:

"In line with the increased economic efforts of the country, the Germany financial situation, insofar as it can be ascertained from the available official statistics, which do not include any data on the expenditure side of the budget, is showing evidence of the expansion and strain.

"There has been a considerable acceleration during the past year in the issue of consolidated loans, which can be ascribed only in part to the increased financial needs resulting from the annexation of Austria and Sudetenland.

"The note circulation of the Reichsbank reached on December 31, 1938, a new high of 8,222,847,000 marks, higher by 200,000,000 marks than the abnormal level during the September crisis.

"These increases are of special significance when considered in the light of the growing realization that with an approach to full employment of labor and production facilities, mere creation of additional credit cannot increase production."

The memorandum said the shortage of labor was one of the most serious problems of Germany, recalling the prediction of some department officials last week that the occupation of Czechoslovakia would enable Germany to recruit a new supply of labor.

The memorandum said Germany was short of about 1,000,000 workers this year and that the shortage was twice as high as last year, because of the large number of persons needed for armaments and public works projects.

REICH TO RETALIATE FOR 'PENAL' TARIFF

Action May Be Delayed in Hope of 'Pressure on Government.'

BERLIN, March 20.—(UP)—Germany probably will retaliate to the United States "penal duty" on the Reich's exports by establishing similar high duties on imports of copper, cotton and wheat from the United States, the financial newspaper Boersen Zeitung indicated tonight.

"It is obvious that Germany will consider whether and what retaliatory measures should be taken," the Boersen Zeitung said.

The newspaper said that Germany's reprisal action probably would be withheld, however, to give those sections of the United States which would be primarily affected by the Nazi measures, a chance to bring pressure to bear on the American government and demand that the action against Germany be modified so Americans would not suffer from reprisals.

WITHOUT REGRET

No one, least of all the members, can feel regret that the regular session of the state legislature has come to an end. The assembly had reached such an impossible state of confusion that hope of constructive work had been, perforce, abandoned. True, there is regret that the 60 days, which opened so auspiciously, did not produce a record more worthy of the men and women who composed the law-making personnel. But there was no chance for a change in attitude, at least not until after a pause during which the members have time to consider wherein, as a body, they failed and to regain their calm realization of obligation to the state and to its people.

Reasons for the futility of the session need not be discussed here. They were many, including factional politics, personal ambitions and the pressure of selfish interests. The result was more than regrettable, it was tragic. For, as the situation stands today, Georgia has been pushed backward and her people have been betrayed at a time when their hopes were justifiably high.

Yet the personnel of the assembly, viewed individually, is of high caliber. Its men and women will average, in intelligence and in patriotic desire to serve the state, above the general level of their constituents. Otherwise, they would not have been chosen as representatives.

The truth is that the fogs of personal ambitions and conflicting prejudices rose so densely during the sessions, the welfare of the state was smothered. Obscuring clouds of factionalism forced the assembly from its proper course and, like a lost pilot of the air, it was unable to regain the true direction.

There is strong possibility of an extra session, to deal with the tax emergency, before the summer is over. That the emergency exists there can be no denying. Quiet reflection will bring realization of this fact to the entire state, assembly members and all. There is, therefore, strong hope that, in a special session devoted to this one problem, the true qualities of the vast majority of the representatives and senators will come to the fore and, forgetting political ambitions, they may yet perform a constructive service for their state that shall redeem their record of the past two months.

Never was a Georgia legislature offered a finer opportunity for service than will fall to the lot of the present body if a special session on taxation is called. Upon their attitude and actions then will depend the future progress or retrogression of their state.

The times call, in compelling voice, for men and women who will put their state and its needs above personal ambition, both inside and outside the legislative halls.

THE RED CROSS

The annual Red Cross roll call opened, in Atlanta and Fulton county, in Decatur and DeKalb county, yesterday. Once more the time has come around when everybody is asked to contribute, according to their ability, to this organization. It is an organization world wide in service, yet a neighbor to everyone of us in time of need. It is a cause that knows no boundaries of nation, race or creed, that measures its giving only by the extent of human necessity.

There should be no need, today, to sell the cause of the Red Cross to citizens of America. Too often it has stood in the front line in times of disaster. In times of fire and storm and flood it has borne the brunt of humanitarian heroism and it has been the agent, wherever the cry for help was sounded, of every generous heart among us.

Everyone who can possibly spare a dollar or more is called upon at this time to enroll in the great army of the Red Cross for another year of service. There will be no lagging in this community, for there is none among us who does not find cause for pride in membership and in the right to display that world-recognized insignia of mercy, the red cross upon the field of white.

Georgia knows well the functions of the Red Cross. Oftentimes it has brought succor to our own people when despair was blackest. Other emergencies will, inevitably, arise. It will be good to know, then, that we all uphold the banners of the Red Cross, that we are all enlisted, through our roll call memberships, in its never-ending warfare against human suffering and woe.

It has been a month of elimination—of the intolerable Czech republic from the Old World picture, of the unspeakable tomato from the clam chowder of Maine.

WHETHER 'TWERE BETTER—

The world seems, at this writing, to be faced with a choice so bitter that reasonable men must wonder why the power that guides the destinies of creation should permit such conditions to arise. The question at issue is, whether it were better to permit Adolf Hitler, the German Reich and the cruel theories of Nazidom to march on to preponderant power, or to plunge into warfare so awful the mind staggers at its probabilities.

It is but a choice between two evils, either so fearful it seems a thing beyond the pale. Yet, as time passes along its speeding way, the day when choice becomes compulsory looms ever nearer.

That the choice must be made should, by this time, be clear. For Hitler has proved, time and time again, that customary guarantees and pledges, the assurances usual between men and peoples of honor, are worthless when he is a signatory. He has demonstrated, ruthlessly, that he is utterly unscrupulous when ambition points the way to new aggrandizement.

Treaties, promises and compacts are not worth the breath with which they are discussed nor the paper on which they are written, if one of the parties thereto is the present government of Germany. Indeed, the world should have learned on that sad day a quarter-century ago, when the then Kaiser referred to the treaty with Belgium as a "scrap of paper," to be sneered at and ignored, that the thought processes of Germany, old and new, are alien to those of nations and individuals which have been taught that decent people regard their solemn undertakings as sacred obligations.

There remains but one argument to which the German will listen. That is the argument of superior force. When ethics will not control, might becomes the only enforceable law.

Thus the question speeds to a head.

On the one hand there is the prospect of a world dominated and controlled by a theory of government that denies the fundamental rights of freedom to its people. A government that tosses its citizens, ruthlessly, beneath the crushing wheels of the juggernaut of state need. A government that dooms helpless and blameless minorities to concentration camps and death, that drives women and children, homeless, to the distant places of the earth and that deliberately seeks the extermination of a people whose only crime is that they are sons and daughters of a different race and believers in a different religion.

There is no doubt, whatever, that a Germany unchecked means a Germany of overwhelming dominance in world affairs. It is but the head-burying philosophy of the ostrich to deceive ourselves with the claim that such an influence would not reach across the oceans to the American continents and to our own country.

On the other hand is the resort to armed conflict with a power-mad Germany, led by an unscrupulous erratic. For such is Hitler. Such a war means a world writhing in the agony of its own death throes. It means frightful death from the skies, raining upon helpless civilian victims. It means blasting devastation of the pleasant cities and towns of France and England, the lands we know so well. It means, in fearful possibility, similar experiences for some of our own cities and our own women and children.

It means long months of sub-human existence for our young men, in the muddy and vermin-infested trenches of modern warfare. It means searing death in flame-wrapped planes for many of our sons. It means bodies torn to pieces by high explosives and scattered over the tortured, blood-soaked fields of No Man's Land.

It is a bitter choice forced upon a would-be decent world. The answer will be written soon, the path determined and the payment begun.

Peace is the hope, the aspiration and the dream of all mankind. Yet perhaps, at this time, it would be well to search most deeply our souls and to recall, with prayer for guidance, that couplet written three centuries ago by Richard Lovelace:

"I could not love thee, dear, so much,
Lov'd I not honour more."

Experiments with the gas mask on British tots show some take to it easily, while others turn blue. One and all, however, stop sucking the thumb.

The strange case of Ferdinand the Bull is not the only one of its kind. Look what's become of the Tammany tiger.

Thomas Mann sees an economic break-up just ahead for the totalitarians, as, no matter how long you boil it, a cannon is not to eat.

WANT NOTHING OF THE SORT

(From The Charlotte Observer)

Mr. William Randolph Hearst, in recent strictures upon the Roosevelt regime, announced that what this country needs is an "administration that will sit on the industrial side of the table and look at situations from the viewpoint of American industry."

That is only a half-truth. America should want nothing of the sort. It should want an administration that sits neither on the side of the table occupied by capital nor on the side occupied by labor.

What we need is an administration that sits at the head of the table, one that can be fair and friendly, helpful and co-operative with both of the occupants along the side—an administration, in a word, that is fair to all concerned, un-influenced by pressure groups, unprejudiced toward every faction, and judicial in its attitudes toward each and all.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

"ARMY ENGINEER MODERN" WASHINGTON, March 20.—A startling change of decoration is observable at the Works Progress Administration, now that Colonel Francis C. Harrington has had time to put his house in order. The WPA's human furnishings were once in the most ornate style of New Deal baroque. They may now be described (to borrow the language of the woman's page) as army engineer modern, with mere softening New Deal touches.

The change again proves the maxim that an administrator's personality is always reflected in his agency. Harrington's predecessor, Harry Hopkins, was earnest, disinterested, but a zealot. Consequently, the WPA teemed with zealots in his period. The directing personalities were the burning-eyed Aubrey Williams, the discreet David K. Niles, and others who called Dave Lasser, of the Workers' Alliance, "a great American," and led cynical conservative Democrats to call the WPA a "damned maggot hatch."

There is nothing of the zealot, however, in "Pinky" Harrington. (The nickname itself a relic of young days at West Point, almost makes the statement unnecessary.) He is a shrewd, inexperienced army officer, with a genially self-contained, rather worldly manner, and the determination to do a good job which marks the engineers' corps.

And, as might be expected, the zealots have no place in the Harrington regime. Williams, who hoped for the higher place, is now confined to his own bailiwick of the National Youth Administration. Dave Niles still draws his pay from an obscure WPA post, but has withdrawn his countenance to the Commerce Department. The other Lasser admirers have departed, and Lasser himself has learned to expect politeness but no further encouragement. The WPA has been reorganized, with five divisions. Those of employment and engineering are in the hands of former Harrington subordinates at the WPA engineers' office. Those of finance and administration have been confined to tested fact and figure men. And the fifth, which includes the white collar and arts projects, is headed by the practical-minded Mrs. Florence Kerr, who used to manage the same projects in the Chicago region.

THE WORK

Furthermore, Colonel Harrington appears to be honestly trying to correct some of the WPA's more obvious faults. In the old days the WPA suffered from conscious rectitude. When a fault was pointed out, the pointer was denounced as a man of ill-will, slandering the good, the true and the beautiful. The indignant report denying the existence of politics in the Pennsylvania WPA will be remembered as a glaring case in point.

Now (O Tempora, O Mores) something is actually being done about the WPA in Pennsylvania. Senator Joseph F. Guffey's creature-in-chief, J. Banks Hudson, has resigned, and a qualified engineer, E. C. Smith, has been appointed Pennsylvania administrator. He is expected to correct certain mistakes, and the other locusts who once made the Pennsylvania WPA a mere annex of the Guffey organization are being hurled, protesting, from the pay roll. In other states, where similar situations have prevailed, a similar process is at work. Then, too, the WPA's technical problems are being tackled. Harrington is studying job rotation, to take care of the large percentage of relievers who have become "career men," clinging like limpets to the WPA rolls. A new formula for apportioning funds among the states, based on combined unemployment and population statistics, will soon be suggested by the colonel. He is even trying to arrange for adequate, up-to-date unemployment figures.

THE MAN

Harrington finds his position somewhat surprising, for his task is to get money out fast to the unemployed, and all his previous experience was to save the government's money whenever possible. As an army engineer, he was in the first rank when he was "temporarily" assigned to the WPA in 1935. He expected to remain only four months, but Harry Hopkins took a liking to him. He stayed on as WPA consulting engineer, and, when Hopkins went to Commerce, as the WPA was under fire, he was put in Hopkins' job to please the world.

Tallish and pleasant-looking, Harrington likes good living and agreeable company, and misses the exercise he must sacrifice to his work. If he goes on as he has started, his work should be successful. Hopkins, with his zeal and idealism, was the man to start relief in an emergency. Harrington, with his flavor of "normalcy," is the man to carry it through the present, more caputious times.

A Rare Experience.

It is years since I've enjoyed the experience. Of starting to read a book and becoming so enthralled it is utterly impossible to lay it down until every word has been read, to the final period of the last sentence of the closing paragraph of the concluding chapter.

I had thought that, perhaps, age was making me more critical, or at least more blasé. Harder to please, the fascinated attention more elusive to trap. I have read these newer books, particularly those about Georgia and the south. About days of the War Between the States and still earlier days. Even that volume which has now ceased to be a book and become a national institution, "Gone With the Wind," failed to hold me. Margaret Mitchell is a delightful person and I'm proud to know her but I must confess my reading of her famous book was marked by the skipping of portions, now and then. I read it from start to finish, but not every word.

Last Friday night, however, I found another book written by a Georgian, about old Georgia. It is a new book, just published by the Christopher Publishing House, of Boston. So new the first orders hadn't arrived at the local book-stores on Saturday when a friend, on my recommendation, tried to buy a copy. They said they'd be in Monday, however, sure.

It Is Called, "To Save Their Souls."

The author of the book, which is titled "To Save Their Souls," is a Bessie Lewis, of Darien, Ga. I'd never heard of her before. They tell me now, however, that she is quite an authority on the history of McIntosh county. Her novel, at any rate, bears the evidence of historic truth. The title, by the way, is satiric. That was the alibi used by the bringers of all the worst woes upon the negroes.

It is a story of old plantation days on the Georgia coast, about a great home called, in the book, "Myown Plantation." It begins sometime about 1810, or thereabouts. And it carries on through the quiet days until the War Between the States. It paints a most vivid picture of life far behind the lines of battle, among the women and children left at home. It closes its story in the midst of the horrors of Reconstruction, before the restoration of decent conditions, while the rascally carpetbaggers used the ignorant negroes for their own greed.

And the story is written from a viewpoint never, insofar as I know, tried before for such a theme. The viewpoint of the negroes, as slaves and as bewildered, emancipated people.

The publisher's blurb says "The book unfolds an incredibly realistic tale." That is, literally and absolutely correct. Except that the adjective "incredibly" is not so well chosen. To those who know nothing of Georgia and the south in the days about which "To Save Their Souls" is written it may seem boring and incredible, at least. But southerners know that it is true, painfully true, to the facts of history.

It Begins

In Africa.

The story begins in Africa, with a line of chained captives being driven to the coast, where a Yankee slave ship waits. Among them is the Foulah woman, torn from her native village, her husband and her baby.

The voyage on the slave ship is a nightmare of horror. Not pleasant, but too pitifully true to facts. Landed on the Georgia coast, the Foulah woman is sold to the owner of Myown plantation. Her white master and mistress treat her so kindly, as they do all their slaves, that her earlier history becomes like a forgotten dream. She becomes, in time, the head of the house servants at Myown, known as Maum Hagar. And she dies, during the war days, and her daughter, Maum Diana, succeeds her. Maum Diana has a daughter, Tamar, but Tamar comes to womanhood while the family is refugeeing and during the terrible times of reconstruction. Her fate is not so happy.

You'll delight, if you read it, in Maum Hagar and Daddy Cato and Maum Diana and Sancho and little Anber and the other negroes. And, you'll understand, too, why they loved their white people, Miz Busy and Mas Phillip and Mas Donald and all.

There are plenty of white characters, but they stay, all the time, rather in the background. It is the negroes who center interest. They say Bessie Lewis found much of her material in old letters, written from the real life Tamar, who afterwards lived in Bainbridge, and the real life Miz Busy, who spent her declining years in Atlanta.

Anyway, it is the most fascinating and enthralling book I've read in many years. I feel, today, a great eagerness to insist upon everyone reading it. For I want to share my enthusiasm.

Twenty-Five Years Ago Today.

From the news columns of Saturday, March 21, 1914:
"Following a conference in the city construction office between Chief R. M. Clayton, Robert F. Maddox, Edward Alfriend and Forrest Adair, it was announced that an agreement had been reached between the city and property owners whereby Peachtree street in front of the Aragon hotel will be widened approximately five feet."

And Fifty Years Ago.

From the news columns of Thursday, March 21, 1889:
"The Southern league has been formed, and Atlanta, its mainstay and keystone, is in, and in to stay. Now play ball! The league will be composed of six cities, Atlanta, New Orleans, Memphis, Charleston, Chattanooga and Birmingham."

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Big Money— NEW YORK, March 20.—Fiction writers make big money at home, sometimes as much as $3,000 for a story, plus the movie rights which may be much again. It would seem to be a soft way of making a luxurious living, for one story a month should suffice, and some highly successful fictioneers have made one story last a lifetime, merely writing it over and over, now in a Palm Beach setting, now in Hollywood, now on board a ship, and now, for a change of pace, in the poor but honest surroundings of the five-and-ten.

But, although I can run a type-writer and know as many words as the next one and can think up the things he says with little effort, fiction and its rich and easy rewards plainly are not for me. Because I find it impossible to write convincing description of pretty ladies.

"The beautiful oval of her face," I say, and then look at the words on paper and "X" them out and back into it like this: "Against the pale radiance of the moon the beautiful oval of her face—". Nope. Ham! Fresh sheet of paper. Once more, now:—"The deep ovals of her eyes, illumining the tender oval of her face—".

Got to Assemble Her. It gets worse and worse, and it does no good to play the duck for the beautiful oval of her face and stick in on her finely chiseled throat, the slender tendrils of her fingers or the tantalizing tilt of her chin, because, eventually, you have to assemble her like a car on the line. You have got to select a certain kind of eyes, big and round, or mischievous crescents, and fit them alongside a certain type of nose and a small, petulant mouth (for society types), or a different kind for noble, self-sacrificing girls.

That is another problem. You can't say she has a big mouth. It sounds funny. Like mous-mouth. It takes days and days of toil and hundreds of cigarettes to create a nice mouth which is not small, indicating a small, spoiled nature, nor yet an ear-to-ear mouth. Some fictioneers seem to just throw them together any old way and get good results, which may explain why prime fiction brings such high prices.

Then you still have to surround all these fixtures with an outline which, say what you will, has got to be a delicate or tender oval, because that's so, for you give her a square face the editor is going to say, "Why, this doll is just an old bag," and bounce it right back at you. And this head being completed, including the hair—which, by the way, has a seductive fragrance and tickles deliciously against the man's cheek—has got to be mounted on a nice chassis, and there you are in trouble again. Not tall, not runty, not fat, neither scrawny. Just right. You try describing just right and you will see.

Men Don't

Consider. I think the reason why fictioneering remains a highly specialized and profitable trade is that most men never stop to consider why a face is attractive to them and would find, if they did, that the face, for faces, which would sound awful on paper. They don't analyze a face, asking themselves, "is this one oval?" or "are those eyes deep, mysterious pools of devotion?" but respond to a general effect and are much less exacting in real life than they are on the pages of the magazines. Otherwise the only girls who would get a play in this world and acquire loving husbands would be a few models, movie actresses and show girls.

A fictioneer must be completely free of self-consciousness and just let himself go in describing ladies and the wives of men sitting down to do this, would be likely to wonder if the completed product wouldn't seem to the neighbors to be a knock on mamma. It might suggest that a man had a secret dream-girl in his mind and make for distrust and unhappiness in his bower or give his old lady foolish ideas and set her to posturing the graceful double chin of her neck, including her double chins, against the pale light of the moon, or talking baby talk like the heroine of the story.

Men, too, are hard work, because here again the standards are very high and the rules exacting. Firm chin, dancing eyes, tall, lithe, lean, clean-lined with a certain springy eagerness in gait as though about to break into a run and through muscles rippling beneath the jacket or shirt or the honey-colored surface of his sun-tanned arms, this latter for rough diamonds such as oil drillers and engineers and for playboys on the beach of Nassau.

It sounds easy, but you try it, and when the postman drops the story back you will realize why fictioneers get up to $3,000 a story, plus, in some cases, as much again for the movies.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

BUMS AND BIRDS AND— Atlanta is to have a new park. The old triangle in front of the auditorium will disappear. Its dust and unsightliness will give way to grass and trees. The old city hall site will give way to a new building which will pay taxes and become a citizen.

The effect on the auditorium will be tremendous. If they will but go ahead and have the grim old building's face lifted so that it may smile upon the park, instead of frown, all will be well. The park will be of inestimable value. I am sure that birds will like it. Indeed, a compatriot of mine on the paper objected to it, saying, "Only bums and birds use parks in the central sections of cities."

Bums do use them. But even they do not feel comfortable in a good park which is kept green and clean. Many parks in the central sections of cities, I recall one in Memphis, are down at the heel, littered with peanut shells and other debris. The bums who frequent it fit in with their surroundings in a sort of chameleon-like manner.

This one, I am sure, will be such a park as will make a bum wish to go wash himself so as to be worthy of the park. I am sure that many poor mothers will push their baby carriages there. And I trust there will be one corner where there are swings and slides and perhaps one of those merry-go-round affairs with seats for which the motive power is leg power. It must have one corner fitted in such a manner. It would be nice, too, if there were some concrete strips for skating.

Incidentally, only a few short days since Dr. M. S. Davage spoke to the Rotarians about his people's needs, there is the start of a movement which is expected to produce a park for them.

A FEW FLOWERS AND DUCKS?

It is too bad it isn't possible to have a small lake in the park with some ducks to swim in it.

There really ought to be some fine flower beds and benches near them so that people may sit and look at them.

I am afraid that not enough people enjoy the park. At Piedmont park there are regular Sunday morning pilgrimages to feed the ducks. The same parents and children come each Sunday morning for the ritual of feeding the ducks. If the ducks are not hungry and refuse to eat it causes a complete wreckage of Sunday morning. The swings and the slides are busy. One may see a fond father trying to encourage his small son to attempt the large slide while a fond mother stands by, thinking that perhaps it would not be such an awful thing if the work days were seven instead of six. Her son would not then be sent up the tall steps just because father wants him to be brave.

So, I trust his honor, the mayor, and the park commission will try to give us a small lake and a few ducks and some flowers. And a policeman to walk around during the flower season so that those with the souls of vandals may not wreck the flowers.

RETURN TO THE CITIES There is going on, all over the nation, an exodus from the cities. One housing project we have is an indication. The others again will demonstrate that people will live in the cities if they have a decent place in which to live.

One of these days this will happen—a group of property owners or the city will go to one of its streets which is lined with scabrous houses, old with years and unrepair, and tear them down. They then will build new homes, well separated, with good lawns so that air and sun may be had. These houses will be the same bright cottages which one may see going up on all the roads outside Atlanta. They will be built for a distance of two or three blocks. There will be an immediate response. They will be filled up.

The new planners might even use some of the land for small, neighborhood parks with playgrounds on them. Select any one of our streets which are lined with old houses, holdovers from the days when they were "the best residential sections." Inside these houses gone and in their places, neat small homes with lawns are a few trees and flowers about. It isn't even a difficult job. The return to the cities is not a fantastic idea. It would be relatively easy. One of these days so much of the downtown area of all cities will be slum that something of the sort will have to be done. There isn't much reason for waiting.

At any rate, the addition of some more grass and sun and birds to the city's central section will be worth while.

Only the Simpleton Plays With a Gun Without Knowing It Is Loaded

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

To paraphrase Thomas Paine, these are the times that try men's sanity.

The chief characteristic of a sane and well-balanced mind is the ability to realize what the consequences of an action will be. The second, of equal importance, consists in having a sufficient reason for the action.

To know why you do it, and to know what the result will be—that is sanity.

Now most of us are deeply interested in the affairs of Europe and Asia. The war preparations, threats and aggression of totalitarian nations make us fearful and indignant. We cannot discuss these nations without emotion.

This emotion prompts many of us to suggest or favor boycotts, quarantines, sanctions, and any other "peaceful" means of registering our displeasure.

Unfortunately, both history and common sense tell us that any such measure, being unkindly and unkindly, causes the disciplined nation to retaliate angrily and quickly. The world would increase our wrath and prompt further "reprisals," and thus lead soon or late to open conflict. You simply can't punish a great and proud nation without getting punished in return, and any person with good sense knows it.

Therefore, sanity requires that we stop growling imprecations long enough to check up and ask ourselves a few plain questions. Has any Fascist land injured you personally, or do you know of any injury to your country that would justify war?

The thought of punishing dictators pleases your emotions, but the fighting would be done by their young men, who are not responsible. Do you really wish to kill them?

It isn't difficult to watch somebody else march off to war, but do you yourself wish to face death on the battlefield, or send your son, husband or brother?

We "saved democracy" 20 years ago and helped remake the map of Europe. Do you now see any good that we achieved to offset the dreadful cost in lives and money?

The government has perfected plans to clamp a dictatorship on our country the moment war is declared, and thus a war for liberty would begin by destroying liberty. Do you wish to be mobilized and told where to work, what pay to accept, what to eat, what to read, what to say?

Within the last six years our government has saddled us with

STRIKE TO MEAN AUTOMATIC FIRING, CAB DRIVERS TOLD

Belle Isle Cites Firm's Losses; Employee Repre- sentative Declares Com- pany's Earnings Up.

Officials of the Black & White Taxi Cab Company last night served an ultimatum on its employees that if they persisted in calling a strike Thursday morning, they would be automatically replaced.

Refusing to arbitrate the question of a proposed five-cent per hour reduction in the pay of drivers on the grounds that it would jeopardize the business, A. L. Belle Isle, president of the Black & White Company, declared that all drivers who refused to report for work Thursday morning on the basis of 35 cents an hour would be replaced. He said he was "forced to this extremity to protect his business" and "to insure the convenience and comfort of the people of Atlanta who ride taxis."

"Regular chauffeurs now receive 40 cents an hour and extra men 35 cents an hour, and this represents 43 per cent of each dollar taken in by each cab," Belle Isle said. "Last year the company lost $18,000, and was roundly criticized by the Georgia assembly and the municipal government for its inability to provide sufficient cabs and render the service which the people of Atlanta were to expect."

Says Conditions Bettered. He pointed out that he reason the taxi fleet was held to a minimum was because each unit had to produce the maximum income to prevent operating expenses increasing to 53 per cent of the gross dollar, resulting in further loss to the company and greater impairment of service.

Egg Prices Drop To Ten-Cent Level

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. THOMASVILLE, Ga., March 20.—Eggs in this section today are ranging in price from 10 to 12 1-2 cents a dozen for yard run, based on sales from farm to store or direct to consumer. The poultry business in this section has expanded rapidly in the last few years, and the egg production is now very large, with heavy shipments to Florida and other points. Local markets likewise are well stocked and low prices at present are the rule.

In justifying the action of the company in seeking the proposed reduction, President Belle Isle declared that conditions for the driver had been bettered since the Black & White Company entered an agreement with the local union about six years ago to maintain a closed shop.

Drivers' Statement. J. T. Odom, business agent of Local No. 450, Chauffeurs, Teamsters and Helpers of Atlanta, and spokesman for the drivers, said last night the union could not understand why it should be forced to take the cut in pay in view of the fact that the company enjoyed an increase in revenue of $36,000 in 1938 as compared with the previous year. Should the men accept the reduction, he said, it would mean a reduction of $140.40 per man each year.

"Figures show that the cab company in 1937 took in $755,000, and last year the income was $551,000, a gross increase of $36,000," Odom said.

"The steady men now receive 40 cents an hour and the extras 35 cents, with a reduction weekly of $1.22 for uniforms, insurance and social security. Because of the increase in revenues, the union feels that it should not take the reduction, but, to be fair with the company, it agreed to arbitrate, and this was refused."

"This cut, if effected, would not only make up the difference in the $18,000 loss, but also would represent $68.30 per man per year above what the company claimed it lost."

Planes Add to Picturesque Ceremony as They Rain 'Bombs of Mercy' Upon City; Mrs. Rivers Becomes First To Enroll in Great Humanitarian Work.

The Red Cross flag never fluttered more triumphantly than it did yesterday at Five Points when the Atlanta chapter opened its twenty-second annual roll call with impressive ceremonies in which many of Atlanta's leading citizens envisioned an unprecedented 1939 campaign.

It was a picturesque setting—one that inspired the throng of on-lookers who lined the sidewalks and watched from office building windows.

A bright spring sun beat down upon the scene. Dignitaries sat on a platform decorated with Red Cross flags. Around the platform hovered scores of nurses, clad in their spotless white uniforms. The 22d infantry band from Fort McPherson played martial tunes. Overhead was the drone of a squadron of airplanes which rained hundreds of colored balloons—"bombs of mercy."

WINDER RITES SET FOR DR. J. H. WOOD

Veteran Minister's Wife Died Less Than Month Ago in Rome.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. ROME, Ga., March 20.—Religious leaders here today paid tribute to one of Georgia's leading ministers, Dr. John H. Wood, 73-year-old pastor of the First Christian church, who died in a local hospital yesterday after a heart attack.

Funeral services were held this afternoon at his church, with the Rome Ministerial Association in charge. Final rites will be held Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock (E. S. T.) in the First Christian church at Winder, with burial in a Winder cemetery. The Rev. W. C. Foster Dr. C. F. Stauffer, pastor of the First Christian church in Atlanta, and the Rev. Robert Burns, pastor of the Peachtree Christian church in Atlanta, will officiate.

Dr. Wood's wife, Mrs. Nannie Crozier Wood, died February 22. She had likewise been prominently identified with religious work throughout the state.

Surviving are a daughter, Miss Violette Wood, of Atlanta, and two sons, Lamar and Crozier Wood, both of Rome. Dr. Wood was born in Gwinnett county, and was educated in the schools of Gwinnett and Rockdale counties, later being graduated from Transylvania University in Lexington, Ky. He was ordained as a minister in 1889 and began his ministry in Winder, where he was one of the founders of the First Christian church. He was known throughout the state, having served as pastor at Winder 20 years, in Augusta four years and in Rome 10 years. In addition, he was president of Southeastern College at Auburn, Ga., a number of years, and traveled seven years for the Christian Missionary Society of the National Benevolent Association.

In Rome, he was chaplain of Oostanula Masonic lodge, a member of the Kiwanis Club, the Shriner and the K. P. He was a member of the Community Chest of the Chamber of Commerce, the Salvation Army and the W. C. T. U. He was a former president of the Rome Ministerial Association.

GOOD MORNING By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

PRODUCING PREACHERS. President J. P. Few, of Duke University, is quoted as saying in his report to the trustees of that institution:

"A new emphasis is to be put upon the importance of preaching. This seems to me to be highly important. American theological schools have done well in the training of ministers, but they have been none too successful in stimulating and producing great preachers. If Duke could do something worth while in that direction it would thereby render a service that is needed in our time and that would be as pleasing to us all as any service the university could render."

Whereupon the editor of the Charlotte Observer makes comment to the effect that as desirable as it is to have better preachers, one may make a mistake. "Few may make it in his eagerness to lay the emphasis purely upon what a college can do in this field, the mistake of forgetting that great preachers are seldom made by mere collegiate or theological training. First, we must take into account that God must make the man with the right qualities of mind and body. Again, grace is essential. One may be of rare superiority in mental and physical assets, and yet if one lacks divine grace, there is no chance to become a great preacher."

President Few, no doubt, would agree that these God-given qualities come first, but in the quoted passage of his report to his trustees, he fails to take this into account. Nothing can stimulate or produce a great preacher that does not take into account the divine call and the divine endowment. We may well remember that Saul of Tarsus had attended one of the greatest universities of all time, but he was not a great preacher until he met the Master face to face on the Damascus road. His call, waiting on his knees till the Holy Spirit gave him direction what to do and what to say, Paul, the greatest preacher of Christianity, said, "And I thank Christ Jesus our Lord, who hath enabled me, for that He counted me faithful, putting me into the ministry," and further he declared that he was resolved to henceforth preach only Jesus Christ, and Him crucified.

The task of stimulating and producing great preachers is one that may well lay claim upon the schools, but let it be clearly understood in this as in all other efforts relating to the Kingdom of God, that we build in vain unless God's will be recognized and followed, and utter reliance upon His grace be acknowledged and practiced.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backache people who are so miserable with their aching backs and stiff joints are relieved when treated in the right way. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisons out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 15 pounds of waste.

SPONSOR OF PLAY. A new field has been found for statisticians. Local ones have produced statistics to show that the WPA sponsored more than 1,000,000 hours of play in San Jose, Cal., during 1938. Twenty-one recreation centers were operated.

THIS MORNING

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES II.

"The cattle are grazing,
Their heads never raising,
They are forty feeding like one."

"Your constant hammering on the need of a new and semi-autonomous south is a real life job—keep it up!" writes the Rev. C. G. Hamilton, of Aberdeen, Miss. "The other day," writes J. F. S. of Danville, Va., "You inadvertently repeated at the head of your column some lines about 'the cattle are grazing—their heads never raising' which you had used only a short time before." "Everything is so large and impersonal these days," advises Raymond Angier, from Macon, Ga., "that I like your use of the names of people in your column even if I never heard of them."

These remarks on the repetition and the personalities which go on here occasionally are typical enough for comment. In our psychology book repeating yourself and being personal are important. People have to hear a thing at least twice before they really hear it, before it sinks in. And points made as a human being or involving a human being are much easier to read than ones offered impersonally. We think so, at any rate.

We hope to be sustained when we say that most of the references we make to local persons are accompanied by general observations meant to be of interest even if the persons are unknown to most of our readers. We try to use an individual name as a stepping stone to comment which includes but goes beyond the individual named. And we hope to be believed when we swear that repetition of comments or quotations here are not done to save work or fill space. Our tendency is to write too much, not too little. Every day we have to go through this column and cut it down about one-third in order not to be long-winded, incoherent, verbose.

The quotations which lead here daily are not meant to be new. They are meant to be old and familiar. Often they are theme songs (if Kate Smith can have them we don't see why we can't). Very much of a theme song is the quotation from Wordsworth mentioned by our Danville friend—"The cattle are grazing—Their heads never raising—They are forty feeding like one." We have used that often and shall use it often again. It is our way of saying that agriculture is still the south's great way, that it can be a way of beauty and peace as well as of economy, that diversification is its secret, and that, Wisconsin to the

He said this group would appeal particularly to southern members in congress.

Lasser said the alliance, an organization of WPA employes and the unemployed, was printing 3,000,000 ballots for a poll of all WPA workers in the United States on another job march on the nation's capital. The ballots would be sent out simultaneously, he

INSTALLMENT 1.

I have just returned from a visit to my landlord—the solitary neighbor that I shall be troubled with. This is certainly a beautiful country! In all England, I don't believe I could have fixed on a situation so completely removed from the stir of society, and Mr. Heathcliff and I are such a suitable pair to divide the desolation between us. He little imagined how my heart warmed towards him when I beheld his black eyes withdraw so auspiciously under their brows, as I rode up, when his fingers sheltered themselves with a jealous resolution still further in his waistcoat, as I announced my name.

"I'm Mr. Lockwood, your new tenant, sir," I said. "I want to express my hope that I haven't inconvenienced you by my perseverance in soliciting the occupation of Thrushcross Grange."

"Thrushcross Grange is my own, sir," he said, wincing. "I should not allow anyone to inconvenience me, if I could hinder it—walk in!"

The "walk in" was uttered with closed teeth, and expressed the sentiment, "Go to the devil." I felt interested in a man who seemed more exaggeratedly reserved than any I had met.

Suddenly he preceded me up the causeway, calling, as we entered the court—"Joseph, take Mr. Lockwood's horse; and bring up some wine."

Joseph was an old man, but hale and sinewy. "The Lord help us!" he said in a tone of peevish displeasure, while relieving me of my horse; looking, meantime, in my face so sourly that I charitably thought he must have need of divine aid to digest his dinner.

Wuthering Heights is the name of Mr. Heathcliff's dwelling. Wuthering being significant provincial adjective, descriptive of the atmospheric tumult to which its station is exposed in stormy weather. One could guess the power of the north wind blowing over the edge by the excessive slant of a few stunted firs at the end of the house. Happily, the architect had built it strong; the narrow windows are deeply set in the wall, and the corners defended with large jutting stones.

Before passing the threshold, I saw in the grotesque carving over the front, among a wilderness of crumbling griffins and shaggy little boys, a date: 1500; and the name of Hareton Earnshaw.

One step brought us into the family sitting room which included kitchen and parlor, generally, and I believe at Wuthering Heights the kitchen is forced to retreat altogether into another quarter, for I saw no signs of cooking. Above the chimney were sundry villainous old guns, and at the end of the room were rows of immense pewter dishes on a vast oak dresser. The floor was smooth white stone, and in an arch under a dresser was a liver-colored bitch pointer, surrounded by a swarm of squealing puppies; and other dogs haunted the recesses.

Mr. Heathcliff formed a singular contrast to his abode and style of living. He is a dark-skinned gipsy in aspect, in dress and manners as much a gentleman as many a country squire; rather slovenly, perhaps, yet not looking amiss with his negligence, because he has an erect and handsome figure; and rather morose.

I took a seat at the end of the hearthstone opposite that toward which my landlord advanced, and filled up an interval of silence by attempting to caress the canine mother, who had left her nursery, and was sneaking wolfishly to the back of my legs, her lip curled up, and her white teeth watering for a snatch. My caress provoked a long guttural snarl.

"You'd better let the dog alone," growled Mr. Heathcliff in unison, checking fiercer demonstrations with a punch of his foot. "She's not accustomed to be spoiled—not kept for a pet." Then striding to a side door, she shouted again, "Joseph!"

Joseph mumbled indistinctly in the depths of the cellar, but gave no intimation of ascending; so his master dived down to him, leaving me between the mother dog and a pair of grim shaggy sheepdogs, who shared with her a jealous guardianship over all my movements. I sat still and unfortunately indulged in winking and making faces at the trio, and this so irritated madam that she suddenly broke into a fury and leapt on my knees. I flung her back and hastened to interpose the table between us. This roused the whole hive, and parrying off the larger combatants as well as I could with a poker, I was forced to demand, aloud, assistance from the household in re-establishing peace.

Then, happily, an inhabitant of the kitchen made despatch; a lusty dame, with tucked-up gown, bare arms, and fire-flushed cheeks, rushed in flourishing a frying pan; and used that weapon, and her tongue, to such purpose, that the storm subsided magically, and she only remained, heaving like a sea after a high wind, when her master entered the scene.

"What the devil is the matter?" he asked, in a manner I could ill endure after this inhospitable treatment.

"What the devil, indeed!" I muttered. "The herd of possessed swine could have no worse spirits in them than those animals of yours, sir. You might as well leave a stranger with a brood of tigers."

"They won't meddle with persons who touch nothing," he remarked, putting a bottle of wine before me. "Take a glass of wine?"

"No, thank you."

"Not bitten, are you?"

"If I had been, I would have set my signet on the bitter."

Heathcliff's countenance relaxed into a grin.

"Come, come, you are flurried, Mr. Lockwood. Here, take a little wine. Guests are so exceedingly rare in this house that I and my dogs hardly know how to receive them. Your health, sir!"

I bowed and returned the pledge, for I felt loath to yield the fellow further amusement at my expense, since his humor took that turn. He relaxed a little and introduced a little and in a pet her forehead corrugated, and her red under-lip pushed out, like a child's ready to cry.

Meanwhile, the young man had slung on to his person a decidedly shabby upper garment, and erecting himself before the blaze, looked down on me from the corner of his eyes. I began to doubt whether he were a servant or not; his dress and speech were both rude. Five minutes afterwards, the entrance of Heathcliff relieved me in some measure from my uncomfortable state.

"You see, sir, I am come, according to promise," I exclaimed, assuming the cheerful. "But I fear I'll be weather-bound for half an hour, if you can afford me shelter during that space."

"Half an hour?" he said, shaking the white flakes from his clothes. "I wonder you should select the thick of a snowstorm to ramble about in. People familiar with these moors often miss their road on such evenings; and I can tell you there is no chance of a change at present."

"Perhaps I can get a guide among your lads—could you spare me one?"

"I could not."

"Well—I must trust to my own sagacity."

Rivers Vetoes Post Roads Abolition

Issues Executive Order To Effect Economies Sought by Assembly; Signs Libel Measure.

Governor Rivers yesterday vetoed a bill to abolish the post roads division of the highway department and simultaneously issued an executive order designed to effect economies sought in the bill.

At the same time the Governor gave executive approval to a proposed constitutional amendment affecting coastal counties under which they hope to make U. S. highway No. 1 a four-lane route across the state. The measure was sponsored by Senator S. Hadley Brown, of Brunswick, and will be voted on in the June 8 election.

Signs Libel Suit.

Governor Rivers also signed into law the McGinty-Williams libel act designed to bring about changes in the law covering libel actions. This measure was sponsored by Senator Roy McGinty, of Calhoun, and Representative Jack Williams, of Ware county.

Chairman W. L. Miller, of the highway board, later said the post roads executive order would accomplish what "I have understood the house economy committee and the highway board desires, and this is provided for elimination of duplication in carrying on this work."

The house economy committee had recommended abolition of the post roads units as offering a possible annual saving of $160,000. The house voted 142 to 29 for the bill to abolish and the senate 43 to 5.

Governor Rivers announced his veto after a hearing at the capitol today, and was greeted by applause from some 50 rural letter carriers, county commissioners and county school trustees.

Miller Satisfied.

Chairman Miller added that the highway board "was satisfied the entire savings can be taken care of by the Governor's executive order."

The Governor directed that an immediate report be submitted to him "analyzing the economies effected" through his executive order. He said it was his belief that the legislature did not intend to alter the method of allocating money to the post roads work and asserted the order would "do what the assembly wanted to do and at the same time not disturb these allocations."

The new act would have allocated post roads funds to counties on a mileage basis of rural roads and post roads. The present law allocates funds by rural post roads mileage not included in the state aid system.

MRS. JOHN O'NEAL DIES IN CAROLINA

Former Resident of West End Was Active in Social Work.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. LANCASTER, S. C., March 20. Mrs. John O'Neal, wife of John O'Neal, cotton buyer for the Springs Cotton Mills, died in a hospital here today.

The funeral will be held at the First Methodist church at 3:30 p. m., Tuesday. Interment will be in West Side cemetery.

The O'Neals moved to Lancaster from Atlanta, Ga., two years ago. Mrs. O'Neal was active in social and religious work.

She is survived by her husband, two sons, John Will O'Neal, of Atlanta, and Carroll O'Neal, a student at Emory University. Two sisters also survive.

News of Mrs. O'Neal's death was a shock to residents of Atlanta's West End section last night with her husband, she visited here about two months ago.

Mrs. O'Neal was well known in the West End, where she was active in social and church circles. Her husband, a cotton buyer in Atlanta for a number of years, was president of the West End Golf Club for about five years.

BURGLARY CONFESSION BY SUSPECT REPORTED

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. ROME, Ga., March 20.—A man listed by city police as George Morrow, 37, of Rome, was being held in the Floyd county jail today in connection with a series of three burglaries and one attempted burglary, according to Officers House and Bowman, who made the arrest.

Policeman House said Morrow admitted breaking into a bakery here and taking $3.50 from the cash drawer and some cakes; looting a restaurant twice, taking clothing, cigars, cigarettes and razor blades, and breaking the glass in a side door of a drug store in an attempt to burglarize the establishment.

Morrow waived preliminary trial in police court and his case is scheduled for trial at the April term of Floyd superior court.

a 6-to-11-year sentence. With the new term, he had from 24 to 31 years to serve.

At the time of the arrest of Turner and Schwab at their Augusta hideout, it was rumored that the police had received their tip from a woman former friend of the two escaped convicts. At that time they vigorously denied receiving any tip at all.

Yesterday it was learned that Gamble was captured by Chief Wilson, of Augusta, a few hours after Turner and Schwab engineered a wholesale prison break in Forsyth county. At that time it was thought that Gamble was in Turner's raiding party. He soon convinced Chief Wilson, however, that while he had been asked to participate in the break he had refused and was on a bus en route to Augusta when the plot was consummated.

It was learned here that Chief Wilson and Gamble made preliminary arrangements for the "trade" while the prisoner was being held in Augusta pending his removal to Tattnall. It also was learned that Gamble was transported to Augusta after Turner and Schwab had been captured and that he was used to identify the two other men.

Asked yesterday if he had granted the conditional pardon, Governor Rivers said he had signed it on recommendation of the police involved in the case. "I am convinced that the ends of justice were served," the Governor said. "If Gamble trips up, the conditional pardon can be revoked."

PILOT IS HONORED BY WEST END GROUP

Businessmen's Association Presents Scroll to Captain J. D. Hissong.

By PRESS HUDDLESTON.

More than 250 guests and members of the West End Businessmen's Association attended the annual banquet last night of the organization, held at the West End Women's Club on Cascade road. It was a sumptuous turkey dinner served by the women of the club.

Music, entertainment and short addresses by Mayor William B. Hartfield, Judge Jesse Wood and others made the occasion a most enjoyable and delightful one.

The main feature of the meeting was the presentation of an honorary life membership scroll to Captain J. D. Hissong, a member of the association, whose cleverness in landing of an airplane near Montgomery, Ala., recently saved the lives of his passengers.

Enscribed on the scroll were these words: "The West End Businessmen's Association, in recognition of the bravery, courage and sound judgment displayed by Captain J. D. Hissong in safely bringing a disabled airliner to a forced landing, near Montgomery, Ala., or October 18, 1938, thereby saving the lives of the passengers entrusted to his care, we hereby confer upon Captain Hissong honorary life membership in the West End Businessmen's Association."

The scroll was presented to Captain Hissong by Judge Jesse Wood, on behalf of the association. George L. Wilson, president of the club, presented Rev. Henry Kiesel, rector of the Church of Incarnation, on Lee street, as toastmaster. He kept the large gathering, half of whom were of the fair sex, in smiles and laughter by his unique and witty introduction of the various members on the program.

Harold Yancey and Dick McClure sang, while Lynelle Presley, five, led ensemble singing.

SAVANNAHANS GIVE BID TO PAPER FETE

Good-Will Swing Through South Georgia Cities Made by Trio.

SAVANNAH, Ga., March 20.—(AP)—A party of Savannahans left today on a good-will tour designed to attract neighboring Georgians to the first annual southern paper festival, to be held here April 16-19.

The first trip was planned to include the following stops:

Monday—Springfield, Sylvania, Millen and Waynesboro.

Tuesday—Augusta, Louisville and Wrightsville.

Wednesday—Dublin, Swainsboro and Statesboro.

The group carried an ornate scroll, calling attention to the festivities, to which will be affixed signatures of mayors in the communities visited.

The scroll, after being signed by the neighboring mayors, will be placed on exhibition at the municipal auditorium during the festival.

Mayor Thomas Gamble, of Savannah, president of the Festival Association, was first to sign the parchment.

The party included E. R. Ramsey Jr., Miss Frances Connell and Mrs. G. E. Sewell.

Several trips will be made by the group, taking them into almost every section of south and middle Georgia.

WADDY THOMPSON LAST RITES HELD

Funeral Services Conducted in South Carolina.

Final tribute was paid yesterday to Waddy Thompson, author of textbooks on American history and son of a former Governor of South Carolina who died Sunday morning at his home, 23 Walker terrace.

Funeral services were conducted at the graveside in Darlington, S. C., by the Rev. T. E. Simpson

SUSPECT IN SLAYING ADMITS AUTO THEFT

Killing Beside Georgia Highway To Be Investigated Further.

TUSKEGEE, Ala., March 20.—(AP)—Sheriff E. E. Evans said tonight a man identifying himself as Royal Reed, being held in the investigation of a hitchhike slaying, pleaded guilty today before United States Commissioner Bertha M. Smith at Opelika to charges of possessing a stolen automobile and was remanded to jail to await grand jury action.

Sheriff Evans said Reed, who claimed to be a native of Virginia, was picked up here driving an automobile belonging to J. F. Gaeton, of Scranton, Pa., whose body was found near Kingsland, Ga., a week ago.

The sheriff said he and federal officers expected to continue questioning of Reed in the Gaeton death, about which he denies any knowledge.

Authorities here theorized the Pennsylvania garageman was slain by a hitchhiker. He was returning from Florida at the time and was shot through the head.

Reed, the sheriff said, has maintained steadfastly he obtained Gaeton's automobile from a man who gave him a ride near Mobile, told him he expected to steal another car there, and disappeared, leaving him in possession of the Pennsylvania's auto.

GEOGRAPHY TEACHERS WILL MEET ON FRIDAY

Geography teachers of Georgia will hold a special meeting during the Georgia Education Association convention in Atlanta this week end, assembling at the Henry Grady hotel at 10 o'clock Friday morning.

E. S. Sell, professor of geography at the University of Georgia, will preside at the meeting. Speakers will be Ralph McGill, executive editor of The Atlanta Constitution, who will discuss Scandinavia, and W. R. McConnell, professor of geography at Miami University, whose subject will be "Some Impressions of a Recent European Tour."

Mauldin at 3d as Crackers Open Final Week of Training

All in the GAME

by Jack Troy

SAVANNAH, Ga., March 20.—It may be that hitters will have their fling in the Southern league this summer. And then again, the increasing number of night games may work in favor of the pitchers.

The fact remains, however, that the big game winners are gone—Sunkel, Evans, Crouch, Rich, Beckman. But then so are the leading hitters—Hill, Haas, Miles, Howell and others.

Generally, it appears that the Southern league will not be as fast as last season. Birmingham has lost most of its ball club; Chattanooga is trying to make a go of it largely with ex-Crackers; New Orleans is experimenting with youth; Little Rock is depending on the Red Sox for help; Nashville is looking to Brooklyn for the same; Memphis is uncertain, and Knoxville has little hope of rising out of the cellar.

Five new managers are in the league. They are Cuyler at Chattanooga, Torporcer at Little Rock, Peckinpaugh at New Orleans, Brazill at Memphis and Zwilling at Birmingham.

It really should be one of the most interesting seasons in a long time because of the apparent uncertainty of things. No one club stands out at this time.

Atlanta is uncertain as to pitching and in one or two positions. The Crackers have more speed by far than any other club and may capitalize on it. But the big experiment in youth necessarily leaves a lot to the imagination. It will take time and league games to determine how it's going to work out.

And yet it would seem, looking at what the others have, that the Crackers are as well off as any of them and a lot better, perhaps, than most.

RUBE IS CONFIDENT.

Al Rubeling is confident that his arm is coming around. He says it feels much better. Rubeling is not cutting loose and won't down here. Richards doesn't want him to irritate the arm.

The former field captain of the Macon Peaches appears to be a good hitter and certainly is a capable performer at third. He won't have the arm that Johnny Hill had, even if all the soreness goes, but he is a good man on starting double plays, and throws to first well enough when his arm is right.

Richards isn't worrying about Rubeling. Fact is, Richards doesn't seem to be worrying about anything. He is satisfied with progress made and generally seems to feel good about the outlook.

MAY BE THE ANSWER.

If a real pitching problem exists, as fancied in some quarters, Mack Stewart, the right-hander purchased from Macon, may solve it.

Stewart is a nice-looking pitcher. Richards considers him a game pitcher. That is, a pitcher who can go out and win games a club needs.

Luman Harris, Larry Miller, Bob Durham, Clyde Smoll and Harry Johnston, together with Stewart, form a mound staff of excellent possibilities.

Furthermore, Durham has taken a poll of the pitchers and discovered his contemporaries are going to win so many games it won't be necessary for him to turn in more than nine or ten victories all summer.

"If I can believe the results of my poll," Durham says, "it would be unfair to the league for me to win any more than that."

TRAGEDY AVERTED.

It developed today that tragedy was averted yesterday when the Crackers and Indians squared off in the initial exhibition. Nig Lipscomb saved the day.

Nig was up in the ninth with two men out when Manager Richards signaled to Luman Harris to bat for

BOWSER NAMED PANTHER COACH; SUCCEEDS 'JOCK'

Committee Appointed To Study Athletic Situation at Pitt.

PITTSBURGH, March 20.—(AP) The University of Pittsburgh's trustees tonight named Charles W. Bowser, an honor student and gridiron star at the institution from 1920 to 1923, to succeed Dr. John Bain (Jock) Sutherland as football coach.

The board also appointed a committee to study the "entire athletic situation" at the university in "all its phases" and report to the board as soon as possible.

Sutherland in resigning criticized the school's administration, as did Don F. Saunders, executive secretary of the General Alumni Association, who announced his resignation tonight.

COMMITTEEMEN.

Named to the investigating committee were A. E. Braun, banker; A. W. Robertson, of the Westinghouse Manufacturing & Electric Company; E. T. Weir, steel master; Norman MacLeod, Leon Falk Jr.; E. R. Weidlein and C. W. Reiting.

The faculty committee already had approved Director of Athletics James Hagan's recommendation of Bowser, former coach at Bowdoin and Grove City colleges, and it appeared probable the trustees would accept it without dissent.

The new coach succeeds Sutherland, veteran mentor, who resigned two weeks ago asserting he could no longer agree with the administration of Pitt's new policy of strict amateurism for the gridiron sport. Rumors have linked Sutherland with several jobs, including one as Pennsylvania director of oral hygiene.

STARTS IN 1923.

Bowser, quarterback and center on the great Warner teams of 1920 to 1923, started his coaching career in 1923 as an assistant at Grove City College, Grove City, Pa., and became head coach there the following year.

Three years later he returned to Pitt as an assistant and stayed there until 1930, when he became head coach at Bowdoin. He remained there until 1935 and then returned for the second time to Pitt.

When Bill Kern, assistant at Pitt, moved over to Carnegie Tech as head coach, Bowser stepped into Kern's job as first assistant to Sutherland. He left again at the end of the 1937 season to devote his time to an insurance business.

Perrin Walker's 78 Leads All Petrels

Perrin Walker, the sprinter, took the lead Monday in Oglethorpe's first annual golf tournament on the Forrest Hills course. Walker, despite four three-put greens, had a 78.

Allen Brooks, Dick Tomlin, Ben Forkner, fullback on the football team, and Salfisberg, were next in order behind the leader. The tournament, open to every student at Oglethorpe University, will continue for 10 days, under the direction of Willie Livingston, the new Forest Hills professional.

HE IS FIRING FOR A POSITION ON CRACKER MOUND STAFF

Constitution Staff Photo—Wilson.

Harry Johnston, former Auburn ace, has taken up where he left off late last season, with some fine brand of pitching at the Savannah training camp. He is slated to hurl one of the exhibition games this week. Harry has entirely overcome an injury to his left leg a few years back. He hurled brilliantly for the Crackers at the close of last season till injured again.

SMITHIES PLAY MERITA TODAY

Majority of Last Year's Championship Nine Lost by Tech High.

By ROY WHITE.

Tech High's championship baseball team will swing into action at 3 o'clock this afternoon in a practice game with the Merita Bakers nine at Piedmont park.

It's the first of a series of practice games in preparation for the opening of the season early in April. The Smithies will play Fulton Bag and Cotton Mills at the same hour Thursday afternoon at Piedmont park and will follow with Dixie Saturday afternoon.

Boys' High opened its baseball drills Monday afternoon with a large squad out, but due to football practice on an adjacent field, very little was accomplished. Bill Orgain was in charge of baseball, in the absence of Shorty Doyal, who was directing the football practice.

Tech High lost a majority of its championship team of last year, so Coach Sidney Scarborough is giving every candidate an ample opportunity.

Liniment of Peanut Oil Cured Johnston's Leg

Specialists Gave Up Hope, But Negro Doctor Restored Hurler's Leg to Normalcy.

By ROY WHITE.

Harry Johnston, the former Auburn freshman pitching star, owes his athletic career to Dr. George Carver, famous colored doctor of Tuskegee Institute. And when he is sometimes called "Tuskegee Harry" he comes back with a smile.

He is proud to be called associated with that town, though he is not from Tuskegee.

Not so very many years ago when he was 14 years of age, Harry was kicked on the knee by a pony and shortly afterwards his left leg developed some six inches shorter than the right.

Several specialists were called and each gave up hope, saying Harry's leg would always be shorter and stiff.

GREAT RECOVERY.

Dr. Carver was called and after six weeks, Johnston was walking, though he had a limp. Within a year, he was walking perfectly. Now, in his first big trial in fast baseball company, he is making a great start.

Dr. Carver used his own perfected formula, consisting mainly of peanut oil, as the liniment and rubbed Johnston's leg straight again. In fact Dr. Carver literally lengthened Harry's leg, after all hope had been given up.

The ligaments in his left leg were all torn loose and in healing had tightened up, drawing the leg out of position, and making it much shorter than the other one. Johnston after having his leg restored to normal, began to play baseball, made Auburn's team.

HURLED FOR TIGERS.

Not only was he on the Tiger yearling nine, but he was one of the most popular students in his freshman year. He was a member of the S. A. E. fraternity.

A popular cigar company employed Harry as its Auburn representative. He received only a small salary, but had to dispose of thousands of cigars, for the remaining consideration.

Harry, quite naturally, was the center of attraction, and still is at this camp, though he is not connected with the tobacco company now, but still smokes a favorite brand.

During his off time Johnston is an Alabama state liquor inspector and that title also makes him quite popular.

He was with the Crackers during the latter part of last season and is counted one of those to be carried at last for the first month of the campaign.

CHILDS IS FIRST IN SPRING SHOOT

Columbus Marksman Is Runner-Up in West End Feature.

Dr. Leroy Childs won the spring championship shoot held at the West End Gun Club. He was winner of high gun over all, winner of the small bore with 45x50, and runner-up in the 20-gauge with 46x50.

W. S. Golden, of Columbus, was runner-up for high gun with 97. He won the Class A division and the 20-gauge competition with 48 and was runner-up in the small bore with 44.

Jack Tway was runner-up to Golden in Class A with 90. Dameron Black captured Class B honors with 95, and runner-up was Harry Hewitt, winner of the junior championship, with 93.

Bill McBride proved himself best of the Class C shooters by posting 94x100 score. Runner-up was H. J. Lewis with 87.

L. L. Mauld won the novice class with 85 and was followed by Roy Reagan with 78.

In the 50-bird special Lewis class system, Clyde King took Class A honors with 44 and Dr. Childs was next. L. L. Mauld was Class B winner.

High pro for the shoot was Lon Davis, with Gene Guill next.

More than 45 shooters participated in the event.

Castillo Is Winner In Biloxi Tourney

Biloxi, Miss., March 20.—(AP) Henry Castillo, of Tampa, Fla., today won the Biloxi amateur golf tournament, 2 and 1, over his Louisiana State University teammate, Bert McDowell, of Kansas City.

Castillo shot a par 70, made a birdie on No. 6, 9 and 16. McDowell made a birdie on the 14th hole. Castillo led three up going into the 18th and got a break when his long, low shot, overruling the green, struck a waterhouse, which stopped his ball a few feet from the pin. McDowell dubbed his approach shot and was forced to take a five.

SIX-INNING GAME SET FOR TODAY WITH SAVANNAH

Paul Richards Cracks Whip in Tough, Three-Hour Session.

By JACK TROY.

SAVANNAH, March 20.—The Crackers raced into their final week of training here in a three-hour workout today, and before it was over Manager Paul Richards had cracked the whip on a lagging infield.

A general lack of interest caused Richards to rare back on his heels and address the quartet in no uncertain terms. There was a general revival of spirit thereafter.

Marshall Mauldin, who is hitting the ball better this spring, worked at third for most of the infield drill. Mauldin is a good fielder and his only fault seems to be a tendency to throw off balance part of the time.

ARM IMPROVED.

Rubeling's arm is improved and Richards is giving him a chance to rest it more. The Rubeling is expected to open at third with Mauldin very likely installed in center. Alf Anderson, who is making a good keystone mate for Russ Peters, improves every day. He has shown all the signs of a good hitter and has impressed one and all with his fielding.

It becomes more evident all the time that the Crackers have at least two infielders who will rank at the top among Southern leaguers. One is Peters. And the other is Jack Bolling. The latter is a Grade A major league prospect.

SCATTER HITTER.

Bolling hopes to lead the Southern league in hitting and may do it. He is a scatter and, of course, very fast foot.

The second exhibition game of the spring will be played tomorrow afternoon. It will be limited to six innings. Emil Lochbaum and Bob Chipman will divide the pitching.

The Crackers will play every day now until camp breaks up next Monday night. Then they will head for Waycross and will play also in Valdosta before returning to Atlanta to open the home exhibition schedule.

Atlanta's new road uniforms arrived today and the Crackers will show Savannahs something in the way of colorful diamond raiment in the remaining exhibitions.

CHAMP, APE MAN CLASH TONIGHT

George Romanoff, one of the greatest wrestlers and showmen in the light heavyweight class, will meet Jack McAdams, handsome and able holder of the southern light-heavy title, in one of the year's stand-out mat attractions tonight at Warren Arena.

The clash of the bearded Ape Man, who usually wrestles barefooted, and the champion, who has turned back all challengers for seven months, figures to draw a throng of close to 2,000 customers. Any wrestling fan knows that this is a natural and that some very brilliant wrestling and action is in store.

Romanoff, making his first appearance here in many months, formerly held the title belt now possessed by McAdams, and he makes no bones about his intentions of regaining the diadem.

Mike Cassidy, who campaigned so successfully here as the Red Devil, will wrestle without the mask tonight, meeting Bob Anderson, the up and coming Decatur boy, in the semi-final.

John Mauldin, bold and bad, will have his hands full with Young London in the opening event at 8:30. One of the features of these excellent shows is the low admission prices.

JACKET FENCERS BEAT BAMA, S. C.

Georgia Tech fencers defeated Alabama and South Carolina in a triangular foil match, and also won a three-weapon match from Alabama Saturday afternoon at the Tech Naval armory.

In the foil contest the Jackets defeated both opponents by the score of 6 to 3. Alabama won second place by beating South Carolina, 6-0.

Tech and Alabama divided their sabers match, 2-2, and Tech won at epee, 2½-1½. This added to the 6-3 victory in the foil contest.

Foil results: Bartha, Tech, beat Bernstein, 5-3; and Denniston, 5-3; Tech, beat Denniston, 5-2; and Ciabattone, 5-3; Talley, of Tech, beat Bartha, 5-1; Davis, Tech, beat Gilbert, 5-4; Bernstein, Alabama, defeated Wright, 5-3; Ciabattone, Alabama, beat Talley, 5-4; and Rippberger, 5-4.

Saber results: Ciabattone, Alabama, beat Bartha, 5-3; and Rippberger, 5-3; Bartha, Tech, beat Gilbert, 5-2; Rippberger, Tech, beat Gilbert, 5-2.

Epee results: Bartha, Tech, beat Bartha, 5-1; Bartha and Ciabattone tied, 2-2; Rippberger, Tech, beat Bartha, 2-1; Ciabattone, Alabama, beat Rippberger, 2-1.

Smithie-Purple Tilt Set Friday, March 31

Tech High and Boys' High will settle their spring football arguments at 2:30 o'clock at Grant field Friday afternoon, March 31, it was decided Monday afternoon.

The game will conclude spring practices of both teams, and since a night game would interfere with activities at Tech, it was definitely decided to play Friday afternoon.

Both teams went through long drills Monday afternoon and will follow with a heavy scrimmage this afternoon.

Southern Association Is Now 50 Years Old

Six-City League Organized at Kimball House; Atlanta "Absolutely Essential To Success."

By MELVIN PAZOL.

The Southern league was 50 years old Monday. Looking back through the files, Ralph T. Jones, associate editor of The Constitution, discovered the fact, almost forgotten, that the Southern league is exactly half as old as the history of the national game itself, which this year celebrates baseball's centennial anniversary.

"The Southern league has been formed and Atlanta, its mainstay and keystone, is in, and in to stay," reads the lead paragraph of the story—under a one-column head opposite the editorial page of The Constitution of Thursday, March 21, 1889.

"Now play ball," the article continues.

The league was then composed of six baseball teams, representing Atlanta, New Orleans, Memphis, Charleston, Chattanooga and Birmingham, "all good teams and possessing staying qualities."

The organization was perfected at the Kimball House the night of March 20. A previous meeting had been held in Chattanooga March 19, but Atlanta was not present.

COUNTED ON ATLANTA.

"The other five cities were extremely anxious to have Atlanta in the league, and went ahead forming a schedule with the city in. Then the meeting adjourned to Atlanta and Mr. (T. D.) Wharton, president of the league; Mr. P. J. Reilly, president of the New Orleans club; Mr. M. Kaufman, a director of the same club; Mr. James Woods, of the Memphis club; and Mr. Ross A. Smith, of the Charleston club, came to Atlanta," the article continues. "Birmingham and Chattanooga were represented by proxy, while several Atlanta gentlemen represented the home club."

At the meeting here Wharton reviewed the situation and asserted that Atlanta was absolutely essential to the success of the league. He stated he had no doubt it would become a paying member.

The Atlanta delegates informed the group that they were not represented at Chattanooga because of unavoidable circumstances, but that Atlanta was in the league for the season.

"This declaration was received with applause," writes The Constitution reporter.

Atlanta promised to secure a manager at once and to ready to play her first game, which was scheduled for April 20. Little trouble was foreseen by the group in securing eight paying members for the league next year.

The same spirit evidenced by Atlanta baseball fans today was manifest then, for the writer concludes: "One strong pull by the ball lovers will give Atlanta a pennant team."

And mind you, at the writing a manager for the embryo nine had not even been secured!

ATLANTA GIRL TWO UNDER PAR FOR FIRST NINE

Mrs. Opal Hill Next With 77; Match Play Starts Today.

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 20.—(AP) Dorothy Kirby, husky schoolgirl-state champion from Atlanta, sliced two strokes from par to walk away with medal honors with a 74 in today's 18-hole qualifying test in the Augusta women's invitational golf tournament.

The veteran Mrs. Opal S. Hill from Kansas City was the only other entry who could closely approach Forest Hills' standard figures, turning in a 77 for the runner-up spot.

Helen Dettweiler, defending champion from Washington, checked in with an 81. Others in the 80's and safely within the championship flight of 16 that will start match play tomorrow included: Jean Bauer, Providence, R. I., 83; Isabel Ogilvie, Augusta, 82; Jane Cothran, Greenville, S. C., 82; Mrs. Myron Davy, Washington, 85; Mrs. Edward L. Howe, Philadelphia, 87, and Mrs. Mildred Prunerat, Newton, Mass., 86.

Miss Kirby's card and par for the course:

Patty Berg Leads North-South Field

SOUTHERN PINES, N. C., March 20.—(AP)—National Champion Patty Berg cracked low drives through chilly winds, putted consistently and scored an 8-under-par 75 today in topping two-score competitors in the first 18 of the 54-hole mid-south women's medal play golf tournament.

The eight birdies and ten pars the Minneapolis girl registered for a 37-38—75 set a record for the Southern Pines Country Club course and gave her a two-stroke lead over Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page, of Chapel Hill, N. C., the 1937 national champion. Miss Berg had set the previous record of 76 last Friday.

portunity to show his ability. No attempt has been made to single out any one star.

Pitching will be the main weakness of the Smithies, with none of the regulars from last year returning.

Bushman, lanky center on the basketball team, and Mike Dorsch have shown much progress in the two weeks of practice and at present have the inside track on the hurling duties.

Both Bushman and Dorsch will be used in today's game, with a couple of others most likely to get into the fray, since the Merita Bakeries team is reported to be one of the best in Atlanta's amateur circles.

Scarborough is glad of the opportunity to play the outstanding amateur teams in the city, for that is the best way to get a line on

ALL IN THE GAME

Petroskey. Luman picked out a bat and started toward the plate. Just about then Lipscomb fled out, and Harris didn't get to bat.

So all the folks left in the left-field stands were safe from the menace of the Harris bat. Someone asked Luman why it was the crowd made a general exodus from the stands as he picked up a bat and he explained it was due to the fact that they didn't want to see anyone get hurt by one of his drives.

Harris has got the idea that he is going to be one of the better Southern league hitters and has gone so far as to predict he'll hit over .250. He's going to win a handsome hat if he does.

PEA SETS THE PACE.

The young pitchers are being inspired by Pea Green, who looks this spring as if he might win a lot of games in the Southern league.

Coach Green, who used to pitch for Little Rock and Beaumont, has shown about as much stuff as any of them in batting practice.

He was doing all right until today, when the old spirit of spring inspired him to don the catching equipment. He didn't look quite like Bill Dickey, but that may be because Dickey is taller than Green.

Even Dick Niehaus, whose arm last year was nothing to write home about, is coming up with a few wrinkles. He must be the weather.

his young candidates while under fire.

Commercial, Marist and G. M. A. also have begun baseball drills on their respective diamonds and are open for practice games by the latter part of the week.

Dodd Excuses George Smith To Allow Him Time To Study.

By TOM McRAE.

Billy Gibson, former Tech High star, was unanimously elected captain of Tech's 1939 baseball team yesterday afternoon as Coach Bobby Dodd greeted his charges for the first time.

The new captain plays shortstop, is a senior and one of the hardest hitters on the team. He batted well over .300 last season. Gibson plays the tailback post on the Jacket eleven.

Coach Dodd said yesterday it appeared Hawk Cavette, ace pitcher who broke his arm in spring football, would be ready to play in the first game. He was throwing balls yesterday and appeared none the worse from his mishap even though he was taking it easy.

Cavette's return will greatly bolster the hurling corps as only one other starter, Jim Corbett, is available.

However, in sharp contrast to the cheer brought about by Cavette, was the announcement that George Smith, third baseman and good hitter, would not be out for baseball because he has too much school work to do in order to graduate in June.

His departure leaves the third base job up to Collins Flint and Wilkins.

The team worked lightly for Dodd, who has been coaching football, yesterday. However, he indicated serious work would get underway today and an intra-squad game may be played Wednesday.

Batting practice and a short infield drill occupied yesterday's practice.

Medal Game Much Better, Kirby Thinks

Dot Gets Off to Bad Start With Six on First Hole.

By DOROTHY KIRBY.
FOREST HILLS HOTEL, AUGUSTA, Ga., March 20.—A change of some sort has certainly taken place in my game when it comes to medal play, for I am getting where I like it. Today I came in low with a 74, which is quite unusual for me in qualifying. I have done better in the last few tournaments as far as qualifying is concerned, but I still can't get used to my low scoring. However, I won't fuss about it.

Mrs. Opal Hill was next with 77. She is the only professional in the tournament. Then Helen Dettweiler had an 81. Jean Bauer 83. Jane Cothran 82. Marion Miles 85.

A 98 got in the first flight. From the way I started out I didn't know what I might wind up with, for my drive off the first tee looked like I used a niblick and it went just about as far and I took a big six to start with. I settled down from then on though.

The best shot I played was on the seventh hole. I guess it was more luck than anything else. The hole is a short par three. I was in the trap on my first, went out too far on the next and the green is one of those things which breaks every way but the right way and I sunk the long shot back for my par three, which was certainly a pleasant surprise. This made me go out in 38 and I had two birdies on the back side for a one-over-par 36. I had one of those days when everything went right and I really hope it continues that way, for from the way the draw looks I will need all of my shots going the right way.

Tomorrow I meet Mrs. Myron Davy and the winner of that takes on Jane Cothran, which isn't much fun to think about. Then in the same bracket are Helen Dettweiler and Jean Bauer.

A very important celebrity is staying here. He is none other than District Attorney Thomas Dewey. He goes out to play golf every day. I was glad I got the opportunity to see him, for I have read so much about him.

To get away from politics and back to golf—I was given a cute watch, one that is worn around the neck, for winning the medal.

REGATTA DELAYED.

MIAMI, Fla., March 20.—(AP)—The Biscayne regatta was postponed for a second time today, officials announcing it would be held tomorrow afternoon if weather conditions permit. The 26-year-old motorboating classic was originally scheduled for yesterday but the bay was too rough.

Bulldogs Overwhelm Stetson in Opener

DELAND, Fla., March 20.—The University of Georgia baseball team opened its season by swamping the Stetson nine, 14 to 3, here under lights tonight.

Several of the Bulldogs had never played night ball but it did not seem to affect their play.

The two teams will meet again tomorrow.

Fraternity Brothers Are Guests At Sea Island Beach House Party

By Sally Forth.

A gala house party "for men only" is now in full progress at Lone Pine cottage, the attractive island home of Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Jones at Sea Island Beach. Gordon Jones, son of the popular Atlanta couple and a Junior at the University of Georgia in Athens, is entertaining a group of his classmates, including Cam Darsey Jr., George Gillon, Francis Norman, Howell Hollis, of Columbus, and Gordon Sullivan, of Rome.

The boys are also fellow members of the S. A. E. fraternity at the university, and the house party is in the nature of a spring vacation.

Many hours of the 10-day trip are being spent aboard the Jones' 40-foot cabin cruiser Lazybones. Fishing lines are being lowered daily from the deck of the boat while hopeful sportsmen wait for strikes.

A healthy tan will be acquired during tennis matches, golf games and horseback rides. Swimming, of course, being enjoyed, and seaplaning provides thrills for the visiting students.

Every evening Gordon and his guests cast aside their customary slacks and polo shirts and don more formal attire to call on popular college belles who elected to spend their spring vacation at the tropical resort.

HER first visit home since her marriage took her to New Orleans for residence is promised Atlanta friends and relatives of Mrs. John S. Waddle around Easter time. Mrs. Waddle, as you know, is the former Clara Lambdin, beautiful only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hal Lambdin, whose marriage to John Waddle was an event of social importance taking place last December.

Clara's excuse for her apparent neglect of Atlanta is that she has been too busy going elsewhere, and when you hear her schedule of the past few months, you will not wonder. No sooner had she settled herself in her new apartment, following her wedding journey, than the gay Mardi Gras season had arrived in New Orleans. And you will not be surprised that her unusual beauty made her in great demand for the festivities, with the result that she attended five balls in as many evenings.

As soon as Mardi Gras was over, Clara packed her bags and left for a visit to her husband's parents in Hope, Ark. After a two weeks' stay, John joined her there and they motored back to New Orleans through the fascinating Evangeline country. Now, it seems, Clara is in Natchez, Miss., where she is reveling in the beauty of the historic ante-bellum homes and gardens for which the city is famed.

The prospect of a two weeks' visit here is of course highly pleasing both to her parents and her host of friends, many of whom are planning informal parties in her honor. The date of her arrival has not been definitely set, but she promises that it will surely be in April.

THE carnival spirit prevailed Saturday evening at the brilliant World's Fair Gala held at the exclusive Surf Club in Miami Beach, Fla. The novel event was produced with the aid of fair executives and reproduced in miniature many of the exhibit buildings which will be seen at the exposition.

Table decorations featured appointments symbolic of the fair, and modernistic pylons, artistically lighted, beautified the lounge and dining room. Miniature reproductions of the fair's Ferris wheel, merry-go-round and midway added to the guests' enjoyment, and a voluble barker endeavored to persuade those present to "try their luck."

A festive private party which assembled a number of prominent Atlantans at the affair was that at which Mr. and Mrs. R. De Witt King entertained for their son and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Jack King, a recent bride couple. Mrs. King, you know, is the former Mary Lamar McKenzie, of Macon.

Seated at their table were Ann Hurt, Mr. and Mrs. Rufus King, Mr. and Mrs. Goodloe Yancey, Mrs. H. S. Canfield, Mr. and Mrs. John Ogden, Mr. and Mrs. Robert P. Ludwig, Sara Jenkins and Tech Fincher.

Miss Doris Gay Weds Harvey Ashe.

MILLEN, Ga., March 20.—Announcement is made today of the marriage of Miss Doris Gay, of Millen, to Harvey Ashe, of Augusta, the ceremony having been performed in Aiken on Sunday.

The bride is the daughter of B. B. Gay and the late Mrs. Queen Aycock Gay, of Millen.

She graduated from Millen High school and the Rider School of Business Administration, and for the past two years she has been associated with the Evans Store, Inc., here.

Accompanying the bridal couple to Aiken were the brother and sister, with whom the bride has resided for some time, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Gay, of this city.

The bride wore a two-piece spring ensemble of French blue and navy, with navy accessories. The groom is the son of Mrs. H. M. Ashe and the late H. M. Ashe, of Augusta. He was born and reared in Augusta and is now teletype operator for the Augusta police department.

Mr. Ashe and his bride are residing at 573 Greene street, in Augusta.

Miss Webb Weds Mr. Robertson.

Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. Claude Webb, of this city, of the marriage of their daughter, Miss Edith Webb, to Thomas E. Robertson, the ceremony having taken place on March 17 at the Second-Ponce de Leon church. Dr. Ryland Knight, pastor, performed the ceremony.

Attendants were Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Worthington, brother and sister of the groom.

The bride wore a navy blue dress trimmed with white, and navy and white accessories. Her flowers were red roses. Mr. and Mrs. Robertson are residing at 2979 Grandview avenue.

Steiner Auxiliary Selects April 12 For Benefit Party

Plans for the annual benefit bridge party to be sponsored on April 12 at the Standard Club, were made at the March meeting of the Steiner Cancer Hospital Auxiliary.

For five years the party has been the only occasion when any appeal is made to the public for this splendid work. The auxiliary has no dues but gives in service and has always found a ready response from people interested in the suffering of humanity.

In the past the aim of the auxiliary to equip a new ward for cancer patients at the hospital has been the inspiration for the parties. Fifteen beds of modern design, made according to specifications for the Ford hospital at Dearborn have been installed, together with other necessary furnishings.

Mr. Claude C. Smith, president, has appointed Mrs. R. I. Reed and Mrs. Joseph Hirsch general chairmen for the party. An added feature this year will be a lecture by Victor Smith at 2 o'clock, after which he will answer questions. The game will begin at 2:30 o'clock.

Miss Colvard Weds Vernon H. Mock.

DALTON, Ga., March 20.—Dr. and Mrs. T. W. Colvard, of Murray county, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Ann Colvard, to Vernon H. Mock, of Atlanta. The marriage was solemnized on March 8, at 5 o'clock, at the home of Rev. J. L. Clegg, of Dalton.

The bride wore a tan model with japonica accessories, and a shoulder spray of white gardenias.

Mrs. Mock is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. McCroskey, of New York city, Charleston, S. C., and Murray county. Her parental grandparents are the late Colonel and Mrs. Alphonse Colvard, of Monroe county, the latter having been Miss Ann Lamar before her marriage.

Mrs. Mock attended school at Georgia State College, at Milledgeville, after which she accepted a position in Atlanta, where she resided for the past few years.

Mr. Mock is a native of Mississippi, and has resided in Atlanta for the past several years.

After the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Mock left for New Orleans, where they will reside.

Cheshire Club.

Mrs. Chester Martin, vice president of Fifth District Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, spoke recently at the Cheshire Garden Club meeting at Rock Spring Presbyterian church. Mrs. Zode Smith, president, presided.

Miss Cora Cheshire won attendance prize, Mrs. C. J. Matson won blue ribbon on flower arrangement, and Mrs. Homer Cheshire won the red ribbon. Arrangements were judged by Mrs. Chester Martin, Mrs. J. C. Turner gave the current events.

Visitors were Mesdames R. L. Dennis, B. M. Dunn and Charles Person. Mrs. O. H. Puckett was appointed chairman of the Red Cross call. Assisting her are Mesdames B. L. Odom, Todd Liddell and F. A. Hubbell. Fifth District report was given by Mrs. John W. Moore.

Lynch—Vanderhook.

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 20.—Miss Ida Calhoun Lynch, of Augusta, married August H. Vanderhook, of Cleveland, Ohio, on March 15, at Covington, Ky., in the presence of relatives and close friends.

Mrs. Vanderhook is the daughter of Mrs. Floride Calhoun Lynch and the late Lewis R. Lynch, of this city.

Mr. Vanderhook, a native of Holland, is engaged in construction and building in Cleveland. The young people are residing at 5909 Hough avenue, Cleveland.

Miss Holder Feted.

Misses Dorothy White and Ann Smith will entertain at a miscellaneous shower Friday evening at the home of the former at 795 Boulevard, N. E., in honor of Miss Frances Holder, whose marriage to R. N. Greer takes place on March 31.

Society Events

Mrs. Brooke Will Speak Today To P.-T. A. on Cancer Control

Mrs. William P. Dunn, chairman of the speakers' bureau for Fulton county in the educational and membership campaign, being waged in the fifth district by the Georgia division of the Women's Field Army for the Control of Cancer, has appointed Mrs. Tom R. Brooke to speak Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock to members of Spring Street School Parent-Teacher Association.

Mrs. Brooke will explain the purpose of the campaign being waged to fight cancer with knowledge. She is a splendid speaker and is well versed in the reason for the mobilization of the Women's Field Army to educate the public on this subject. She has been identified with the work before and is giving her services as a radio speaker and lecturer during this, the third year of the campaign.

President Roosevelt has declared April as cancer control month and requested the co-operation of the public in making this campaign a nation-wide success. The campaign is being launched under the direction of the American Society for the Control of Cancer, which was formed in 1913 to collect and disseminate information on the prevention and cure of cancer.

Mrs. M. S. Eller, health chairman for Joel Chandler Harris Parent-Teacher Association, speaks Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock to members of the above organization. She will touch upon the valiant part women in the fifth district are playing in this important campaign, which has the stamp of approval and sympathy of the American Medical Association.

Other speakers listed on the calendar today are Mrs. Harold L. Mathews, who speaks at 2:30 o'clock to parent-teacher organization of Connally school; and members of James L. Key Parent-Teachers will hear Mrs. Byron Mathews, colonel of Fulton county in the cancer control drive, speak at the school at 2:30 o'clock.

Presbyterian Auxiliary.

The woman's auxiliary of the Peachtree Road Presbyterian church met recently in the S. S. auditorium of the church, at which time the Business Woman's Circle members were guests of the auxiliary. Mrs. R. H. Johns, president, called for annual reports from all secretaries of causes, circle chairmen and chairmen of standing committees. The treasurer reported that the budget for the year 1938-39 had been subscribed and a balance on hand.

Mrs. E. E. Limbaugh, program chairman, presented Mrs. Mary Harris Armour, who gave a talk on "Every Woman Enlisted for Christ."

The new officers were installed and the new circle chairmen read the names of their circle members.

Decatur Junior Service League Plans Spring Carnival for April 6

Decatur Junior Service League has completed plans for a spring carnival, to be held on April 6 at 2 o'clock at the American Legion grounds on Sycamore street in Decatur. Miss Mary Ellen Bennett is general chairman of the carnival.

There will be six main attractions. Heading these attractions will be an Easter egg hunt for the children. A grand prize will be given to winners of the hunt.

Miss Maud Woodward is chairman, with Mrs. Dick McMaster as co-chairman. The other attractions and chairmen are: Marionette shows, Mrs. William Pauley, chairman; Pony rides, Mrs. John Wesley Weekes, chairman; Mrs. Alex Wilson, co-chairman. Grab bag, Mrs. Robert Davis, chairman; Mrs. Hardy Bass, co-chairman; Country store, Mrs. Graham George, chairman; Mrs. Elbert Akin, co-chairman. Famous well-known fortune teller, Mrs. Leslie Steele, chairman. Candy-pulling booth, Mrs. Frank Malone, chairman; Mrs. Hamilton Ansley, co-chairman. Indian dances, given by Boy Scouts of Atlanta, with Miss Mary Ellen Bennett, chairman. Refreshments will be sold by Mrs. Sykes Young, Mrs. James Alsbrook and Mrs. Lucian Tatum.

For Miss Sanford.

Miss Dorothy Sanford, who will become the bride of Joseph Horacek Jr., on March 31, was honor guest yesterday at the luncheon at which Miss Mary Louise Cordes was hostess at the Atlanta Athletic Club.

Covers were placed for Misses Cordes, Sanford, Betty Hatcher, Peggy Dutton, Caroline Malone, Mesdames Joel Cloud, Henry Bowden, J. J. White and Clement Ford.

A New House Dress

By Barbara Bell

A comfortable, good-looking dress like this is a godsend to busy women who are particular about their appearance. Notice how cleverly the bodice is cut, with fullness at the sides, yet with no bulkiness. Loose, pleated sleeves, set in at deep armholes, enable you to work with perfect freedom when wearing this dress. You'll love the slenderizing lines of the V-neck, the plain skirt, the shaped panel in front of the bodice. The big patch pockets are both convenient and decorative. This is a very simple pattern to make. It includes a step-by-step sew chart to guide beginners.

For this design, choose color-fast calico, gingham or percale, in polka dot or small-flowered print, and use gay ricrac to trim. In the summer, this will be your coolest work dress.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1660-B is design for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. Size 38 requires 4 1/8 yards of 35-inch material; 3 yards of ricrac.

Send for Barbara Bell's Spring Pattern Book! Make your own smart new frocks for street, daytime and afternoon with these simple, carefully planned designs! It's chic, it's easy, it's economical, to sew your own. Each pattern includes a step-by-step sew chart to guide beginners.

was such a stickler for correct carriage that, away ahead of her time, she mastered the touch system in knitting. And she never did have a dowager's hump or a double chin!

The old phrase "straight as a ramrod" was accurately descriptive of the ladies of that day. They had their pride and they expressed it in the unbending line of back and shoulders. Since then we have had to contend with the debilitated slouch in which curvature of the spine became fashionable. And what a change that was!

Now we're back to the proud lady posture—with improvements. Aunt Abigail's posture tended toward rigidity and tension and the new version is a combination of stateliness, grace and relaxation. Oddly enough, the rules are easier, too! Instead of disconnected rules like "chest out, shoulders back, chin in," there is just one: Sit and stand as tall as possible without strain.

When you are stretched to full extension there is no slack for rounded shoulders and sway back. And if you make a habit of bending forward only at the hips instead of in sections, there is much less danger of a dowager's hump and double chin. That unsightly little knob of fat on the nape of the neck is caused by poor head carriage. And as if that in itself were not penalty enough, it causes a double chin!

Now that there is a revival of such ladylike pursuits as crocheting, tatting and knitting, it will pay to occasionally pause in your work and check up on your head posture. You can counteract a tendency to let the head droop forward by stretching up with the neck and keeping the chin level. But if you need special exercises to erase the hump, here they are:

Stand facing a wall so that toes and chest touch it. Then retract the abdominal wall by pulling up with the lower abdominal muscles as you push the head away from the wall. This tonically contracts the abdominal muscles and all the muscles used in holding the head erect.

Here's another: Stand erect, arms crossed in back with left hand resting high upon the right forearm, and the right hand on the left forearm. Lower the head backward as you try to raise the folded arms high in back. Relax slowly and repeat.

Another good exercise is to hold a towel taut by either end back of the head and push against it with the back of the head. Repeat six times and rest.

Both the second and third exercises work directly on the dowager's hump and, at the same time, improve the throatline.

Teacher Gives Some Bridge Pointers

By Harold Sharpsteen.

Followers of the Culbertson system of bidding would reduce partner's defensive problems considerably by paying stricter attention to some of the simple principles embodied in the Culbertson system of leads a. well.

For instance, not all Culbertson players follow the rule of only leading fourth best against an adverse notrump contract with an honor card at the top of the suit. . . . The Ace, King, Queen, Jack or Ten.

RELIEVES WORRY.
Rigidly sticking to a system of bids, leads or plays, does not mean playing like a robot but conventional leads and plays are of enormous value when partner knows he can rely on them, whether the game is rubber bridge or tournament play.

South opened the spade six. North's Jack forced East's Ace. East returned a diamond and North took dummy's Queen with the Ace.

North returned the heart deuce. East played low. South's Jack forced dummy's Ace. A spade was led. North ducked. East won with the ten. North's King won the third spade lead and a heart was returned. East guessed wrong and played the Queen, won by South's King.

SOUTH HAS PROBLEM.

Now South faced a problem. If East held the Heart 10 and North the nine and eight, a heart return might set up the possible defeating trick, but declarer might still make game by guessing the diamond finesse.

But if North held the high heart, the Ace, King, Queen and Jack being gone, a switch to clubs might be fatal to declarer.

ELY WAS OPPOSITE.

One consideration made South's task easy. The Culbertson system calls for fourth best lead against a notrump only when holding an honor in the suit.

North was Ely Culbertson himself. Hence, North held the commanding heart.

Madeleine Carrol Absent Too Much From Husband

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, March 20.—Clark Cable has been offered a higher-than-market price for the produce of his 700 orange trees—and this is a big if—he will allow his picture on the packing cases, and, furthermore, permit the oranges to be called "Gable" oranges. No, Clark did not show the enterprising merchant the door. He told him he would think the proposition over!

A quorum of Hollywood male stars got together the other evening to decide which feminine star was the most desirable from a man's point of view. They chose Claudette Colbert—because she has proved herself a devoted wife; she has proved herself the assessor of sex appeal (as one male put it—"Did you see her in 'Zaza'—whoops!"), she has a sense of humor; she is beautiful. And a grand companion. Madeleine Carroll was second choice (Madeleine failed on the marital score because she spends nine months a year away from her husband).

The Gary Coopers' little daughter, Maria, is expecting a sister or a brother from the stork. . . . You would be surprised at the identity of the well-known dashing movie star who owns three cars, a house in Hollywood, a house in the country, a yacht, but still hasn't paid his bills in London. . . . Errol Flynn, who has been bitten more than once in his business ventures, is optimistic that his latest investment—a restaurant opposite the Warner Brothers' studio and managed by his secretary—will bring solid dividends. Errol, wisely, will be a silent—but eating—partner.

The saddest boy in Hollywood is Gene Raymond. To console himself during the absence of Jeanette MacDonald—on a singing tour—he is working day and night on the operetta in which he hopes to star his beautiful wife. As a matter of record, Jeanette wanted Gene to accompany her. But he, and rightly, I think, refused to tag along in the role of unemployed mate.

On the day that Laurence Olivier left for New York, he spent the afternoon on the set of "Gone With the Wind." Ten minutes before he had to leave for his plane, he kissed Vivienne Leigh, turned her back toward him and said "Please don't look round now." H. walked off the set backwards and somewhat spoiled the dramatic effect by tripping over a cable. After a short session of the weeps, Vivien was able to continue her Scarlett chore. . . . Incidentally, it is news to George Cukor that he left "W. T. W." because Norma Shearer wanted him to direct "The Women." George was and is still under the impression that he quit because the script was not to his liking.

Hedy Lamarr is asking people to forget her movie monicker and refer to her simply as Mrs. Gene Markey. . . . Tyrone Power's recent purchase of the Grace Moore house for $75,000 has raised the question of whether this is significant of marital plans with Annabella. I'll tell you what I know. The new house will contain two individual suites—one for Tyrone's mother, and one for his sister. It seems hardly likely that Annabella will want to move in on a full household. . . . Douglas Fairbanks Jr. is one of the few Americans emoting in "The Sun Never Sets." All the rest are Britishers. But Doug's accent is the most "teddibly, teddibly" British on the lot. (Don't get sore at me, Doug. But really your speech gets more like Ronald Colman's every time I hear it.) (Copyright, 1939, for The Constitution and the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

Doctor Explains Characteristics Of Vite

By Dr. William Brady.

Extension of the prime of life, the resiliency of the primitive savage, greater pep and higher average of positive health are some of the characteristic features of vite. Remember, we pointed out when defining vite that it implies much more than just "not complaining." Elderly folk and those prematurely aged are famous for their complaining. They complain, for instance, about conditions which seem entirely satisfactory to younger folk and those who have retained youthful resiliency longer than the average. Drafts, dampness or change of weather, for example. Cranky, hypersensitive, fussy, irritable, peevish, grumpy, crabbed, touchy, cantankerous, difficult are adjectives that suggest primarily lack of vite and fit some people of 40 or 50 as well as they fit others 70 or 80 years of age. It is a question, not of age, but of resiliency, elasticity, bounce.

By the way, what do you think about while rolling your daily somersaults? Don't tell me it is embarrassing, but here is something to keep your mind on for a few dozen rolls. Arteriosclerosis (hardening of the arteries) is a progressive nutritional derangement or change in the arterial wall. As nearly as pathologists can determine the process begins with swelling, thickening and sclerosis or hardening of the intima, the lining of the vessel; the middle or main coat of the artery, the muscular wall; and ultimately it involves the outer coat of fibrous tissue which supports and strengthens the arterial tube and fixes it in place.

If this doesn't interest you at present—that's the great trouble, it is difficult to get any one interested in how to prevent hardening of the arteries until it is too late, that is, until he becomes convinced he has the disease—don't give it another thought, but it will do no harm to remember, as a bit of scientific information, that arteriosclerosis is a nutritional change, derangement or degeneration and it begins in the intima, the lining of the artery which is constantly bathed in the blood stream. If per chance you like to indulge in morbid imagination, you might wonder what effect occasional dashes of alcohol in the blood has upon the delicate endothelial cells which line the artery. That kind of introspection, I think, is good for any one.

In the incipient stage of arteriosclerosis or premature senility, when the intima stands the brunt, the stage of dissipation, say from 20 to 35, your circulation continues to be pretty good, not over 90 per cent efficient, perhaps, but still you feel no serious distress or pain and, as you never undergo a real health test you drift along, laughing at doctors and health hounds and kidding yourself about your ability to "take it."

In the second stage the muscular, elastic media or middle coat of the arteries becomes involved, say from 35 to 50, the stage of hesitation. In this stage you try to do yourself about the strain of your work or overwork and the exhaustion of your nerves and the delicate that a good rest or a vacation or just relaxation is all you need to restore something which you now begin to sense you are losing, but don't kid yourself about that—you are not losing it. You have lost it. You have lost your youth, that's what.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Sneeze.

A argues a hearty sneeze destroys germs by the shock or force of the sneeze, even though it may not kill those germs which are thrown out in the spray when the mouth and nose are not covered over. B argues that sneezing can kill no germs, and a person who sneezes without covering mouth and nose, in the presence of others, is always a menace. (R. S.)

Answer—A is absurd. B is right. Any one who perpetrates an open-face sneeze or cough upon bystanders within 10 or 12 feet should get a swift K. I. T. P. by way of a reminder. In effect such a scoundrel spits in his neighbor's face. (Copyright, 1939, for The Constitution.)

Bride Resents My Day: Importance Of Dogs

By Caroline Chatfield

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

Living with in-laws is bad enough but living with their dogs is worse. We used to have dogs at my old home and they stayed outside where they belonged, had their eating and drinking vessels separate from the family. Here dogs and people eat out of the same plates and saucers, even the vegetable dishes are often put down for them to mouth over. It's not sanitary and it's not decent but when I suggest that the family habits take my appetite my husband gets furious with me. Of course pets should have our separate home but due to the clanish spirit we must all live together. Can you say something on the subject that will make my husband see it my way? MRS. D. R.

ANSWER:

Friend, when you go into a family as an in-law you have to make up your mind to take it all as is: family customs, house-keeping habits, cooking, feeding the members of the family and dogs. It isn't your home and no matter how distasteful their way of life may be to you, you haven't the right to try to reform them nor the influence to do it, if you had the right.

Any suggestion that things were done differently, or done better in your own home is a criticism which the husband's family resents, and as for intimating that their dear dogs shouldn't eat out of the same china you eat out of, why that's an insult they won't brook. You may as well realize this right now and make up your mind to share the plates with the pets so long as you live there.

Incidentally it's right interesting to see how human beings lose the sense of proportion as far as their favorite animals are concerned. It never occurs to a woman that her pet cat or dog has anything worse than fleas nor does it occur to her that her friends don't share her pet share of the house. I have seen a husband pull to the dinner in his love laughs at germs as well as at locksmiths.

Yes, living with uncongenial in-laws is bad enough and you offer more proof of a truth that doesn't need any more proof. There's only one excuse for a man's parking his wife on his family: his inability to provide any other home for her; because nine times out of ten there are clashes of temperament, irreconcilable differences in standards and customs of his wife and his clan that preclude the possibility of their getting off on the right foot. And who, I ask you, suffers most when any two of the crowd are hot and bothered? The boy that put them together in the same cage: that's who.

A White Garden Can Be Very Charming

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

Helen always looks so pretty at her gardening that it's hard to believe she's so good at the job. But in her flowered housecoat she has the magic touch and could make things grow on a sidewalk. I do believe, if she really put her hand to it.

Right now, of course, she's busy with seedlings and flowering shrubs. But hers is no hit-or-miss effort—it's an all-white garden which is charming with her red brick house. She's gotten to be quite an authority on white flowers for all the seasons.

There's the method in her madness. Not only do white flowers look dramatic outside the house but they're just right for cutting and arranging inside. The living room has pale green walls and light green carpet, furniture covering in the peach-colored-gold-brown family of colors and curtains in gold-colored taffeta that lights up dramatically when the sun streaks through them. So you can see how lovely accents of white would be here.

GOLD BRACKETS.

The dining room has darker green walls, peach carpet and white nylon curtains made to hang in wide sweeping lines. The wall opposite the windows has a pair of gold brackets that need Helen's white flowers to complete the design of the room.

Helen's own bedroom is in yellow with aqua carpet, honey maple furniture, white Swiss curtains and spread of white chenille. White flowers seem to pull this room together and give it just the right style and finish.

Texans' Grievance Unhealthy Condition

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

YUMA, ARIZ., ON THE TRAIN.—Friday afternoon I saw some WPA and NYA projects in San Antonio, Texas. Back of the Wittie Museum, a pioneer log hut is being built by NYA boys under the careful supervision of the museum directors. When building is finished, they will be taught to make the tiles for the fireplace by a young man of real ability who is producing and selling some very attractive work. We visited a WPA archeological project which is digging up the past history of Texas under the guidance of the State University. We also saw an NYA girls' sewing room and craft project.

Mayor Quinn was kind enough to call with his wife when I returned to the hotel. There were a number of other groups of people, so that I found myself filling an already overfilled brief case with unfinished mail when we left for the train at 11:30 p. m.

Yesterday we woke in the western part of Texas to miles and miles of desert. A few cattle, some goats and some sheep with their lambs, moved about. This is a desert I have not seen before. Lovely young green and yellow wild flowers are to be seen from the train. While we sat at a rather late breakfast on Saturday, we crossed the Pecos river bridge and looked 361 feet into the canyon. The guardian of the bridge, a little figure of a man, stood by his house waving his arm and received a newspaper dropped down from the train.

Later in the day we saw mountains beginning to take shape in the distance. We passed dry arroyo beds, on which a slight shower had not made any impression. Now and then we saw small ranch houses. Every time I go through this country, which for me has real attraction, I remember the comment by an English friend who crossed the continent by this same route and wrote me when she reached New Mexico: "What a country of vast spaces. How do you ever get governed?"

This brings me back to the impression which criss-crossing Texas and talking to many people has left with me. These people are all conscious of the riches of the state in which they live. They know that they grow certain things at a time when a ready market is to be found in other states. However, you hear one complaint from them: "Why can't we get action from the Interstate Commerce Commission and congress in the matter of freight rate differentials?"

I am just a passing visitor and, of course, know little about the intricacies of the problem, but it seems to me that this theme song has been sung for a long time and that the rest of the country should wake up to the fact that one of their sister states feels a real sense of grievance. That isn't healthy and should not be allowed to continue.

It's Simple to Keep Your Dog Healthy and Happy

"What's a home without a dog?" you say, realizing what a pal one of these fellows can be.

And it's simple to keep a dog healthy, happy—when you avoid common errors in dog care.

It's not true, for instance, that your dog knows instinctively what food is good for him. He needs a carefully supervised, well-balanced diet. Neither does meat make a dog vicious, subject to worms. Safe to give your dog raw or cooked meat from the time he is three weeks old.

Another error is clipping a dog in hot weather. His coat protects him against sun, flies and insects. Frequent bathing is wrong too. It leaves the skin dry, cracked. Bathe your dog about two or three times a year. Dogs don't have sweat glands and they stay clean, free of doggy odors—if given frequent brushings, proper food, exercise and housing.

And how important not to confuse an ordinary fit with rabies symptoms. In spite of belief to the contrary, fits usually are neither dangerous nor fatal.

Be sure of right information when raising a dog. Our 40-page booklet, How to Raise and Train Your Dog, has complete, authoritative instructions on diet, grooming, house manners. Tells how to recognize and treat various ailments. Gives directions for 20 clever tricks.

Woman's Quiz

Q. Is there any way in which I can steam my velvet evening wrap?

A. Hang the garment in the bathroom with a few inches of steaming water in the tub and have the door and windows tightly closed.

Q. What is the age of adolescence?

A. Dr. D. A. Thom in his book "Guiding the Adolescent" published by the Children's Bureau, United States Department of Labor, Washington, D. C. says: "Adolescence is the period of growing up that comes between childhood and adulthood. It may be thought of either as the actual growing-up process, or as the time during which this process takes place. In either case it is usually regarded as covering the years from 12 to 20, or the "teen" age. A girl may reach puberty at the age of 12 or 13, and, being unaware of any new sex emotions, may continue to play with younger boys and girls, remaining emotionally and socially a child until some experience awakens in her more adult reactions; or a boy, growing up with adults and spending much time in wide reading and adult conversation, may reach 16 with an intellectual maturity far beyond that of the average adult, while physically and emotionally he is still a child. Not until the child begins to grow up is he, however, likely to be troubled by, or even conscious of, the fact that there are many sides to his nature; that these sides do not always keep pace with one another; and that, although he is "too big" to do some things, he is not old enough to do others. The growing up in our children requires approximately 8 years; and these 8 years have come to be regarded as a special period with peculiar qualities and characteristics of their own, known as the period of adolescence."

Georgia B. W. M. U. To Open 57th Annual Convention Here Today

Mrs. Burney To Preside at Sessions To Be Held at First Baptist Church

The fifty-seventh annual convention of the Georgia Baptist W. M. U. opens a three-day session at 10 o'clock today at the First Baptist church, with the state president, Mrs. Frank Burney, of Waynesboro, presiding. The organization has a membership of 530,000 and is the largest religious group on the state.

Mrs. Carter Wright, of Roanoke, Ala., representative of B. W. M. U. of the south, will lead the period of devotion today, using as her subject, "The Divine Touch." Greetings will be brought by Mrs. F. D. Burge, president of the hostesses W. M. U.; Mrs. J. W. Awtry, superintendent of the Atlanta association, and Mrs. W. O. Mitchell, vice president of the north central division. Mrs. Charles Greer, of LaGrange, will respond to the greetings.

The nominating committee is composed of two members of the state at large who are elected by the executive board in January and one from each of the seven divisions. The two elected by the board are Mrs. Peter Kittles, of Sylvania, and Mrs. O. A. Rutland, of Rome. These from the divisions will be elected at this morning's session.

Recommendations of the executive board will be brought by Mrs. Roger Howell. These will be voted on at a later session.

Miss Dollie Hiett, W. M. U. field worker, will speak on the work over the state. Mrs. A. B. Couch, publicity chairman, will report on that phase of the work and will

School Garden Group Holds Annual Dinner

An event of the St. Patrick's season was the annual dinner of the School Garden Association of Atlanta on Friday at the Atlanta Woman's Club. Decorations, including attractive place cards and programs made by the school children, were complete in their color scheme of green and white. On the tables were spirea, white flowering peach and iris surrounded by green ivy.

Miss Ada West, president of the association, presided and introduced as the first speaker Miss Hattie Rainwater, founder of the Atlanta association and supervisor of nature study in the public schools. Miss Rainwater introduced Miss Maude Rhodes, who gave views on nature gardening.

M. E. Coleman, assistant superintendent of Atlanta schools, was introduced by Mrs. H. R. Acosta. He spoke on the true educational effects of gardening, commending the Atlanta teachers for bringing boys and girls into contact with nature. In the main speech of the evening Dr. Elmer Campbell brought out man's dependence on the green plant. Commending gardening in the schools, he said, "A school garden is a place where one may blend his soul with the fruiting sod."

Lawrence Munn, accompanied by William O. Munn, sang, and Miss Mary Alice Bigham and Miss Maurine Coley danced, the last number being "Irish Fun," an appropriate dance for the St. Patrick's season. The occasion was the second of its kind and assembled 75 members and friends. Since its founding two years ago the Atlanta association has been responsible for the formation of nature-garden clubs in the public schools and has itself become affiliated with the School Garden Association of America.

Final Parties Given For Miss Burdett

Final pre-nuptial parties are being given this week for Miss Polly Burdett and Robert W. Miles, whose marriage takes place on Saturday.

Among affairs is a breakfast to be given by Miss Emma Hardman, of Commerce, on Thursday morning at the Driving Club. Miss Hardman will be maid of honor at the forthcoming marriage.

Last evening Mr. and Mrs. L. A. McKinley gave a steak fry at their home on Northwood avenue honoring Miss Burdett and her fiancé. Present were Misses Burdett, Constance Knoles, Lillian Kline, Elizabeth Davis, Frances Copeland, Betty Taylor, Marion Walker, Isabelle Vrethman, and Mr. Miles, George McBride, Whitney Butler, Howard Ector, Arthur Burdett Jr., Cutler Hale, Dr. and Mrs. Bagley Benson, Mr. and Mrs. William Miles, Mr. and Mrs. George Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Burdett.

Yesterday afternoon Mrs. Lee McNaughton presided at the bride-elect at a tea at her home on Peachtree Battle avenue.

Guests were Mesdames W. N. Kennon, Bagley Benson, Lester Rumble, Julie Felton, Arthur Burdett, Forrest M. Barfield, Carl Zink, of Pennsylvania; Misses Burdett, Betty Taylor, Constance Knoles, Lillian Klein, Elizabeth Klein, Elizabeth Davis, Frances Davis, Frances Copeland, Isabel Vrethman, Marion Walker and the hostess.

Miss Burdett shared honors Sunday afternoon with Miss Kathryn Rhodes, bride-elect, at a tea given by Dr. and Mrs. C. A. Rhodes and Mrs. Ward Oehmann, of Chevy Chase, Md., at the home of the former on Brighton road.

Two hundred members of the married and unmarried contingents called during the afternoon.

Mrs. Fraser To Honor Mrs. Maxwell at Tea

Mrs. Carlyle Fraser will give a tea today for Mrs. Alva Maxwell, retiring president of the Atlanta Woman's Club.

Assisting Mrs. Fraser will be Mrs. Erwin Gottenstrater, Mrs. W. T. Banning, Mrs. Harvey Bates and Mrs. Robert Parsons.

The tea table will be covered with an imported Belgian cloth. An attractive arrangement of roses blending from a deep red to a shell pink, in a ruby crystal container, will form the centerpiece. In the living room will be Japanese arrangements of gardenias.

About 100 friends of the honor guest will call between the hours of 3 and 5 o'clock.

National Officers Attend Meeting Colonial Dames of XVII Century

Mrs. John S. Adams, state president of the Georgia Society, Colonial Dames of the XVII Century, presided over the recent meeting of the society held here.

The executive board meeting was followed by luncheon, with Mrs. Moreland Speer, chairman, in charge of the arrangements. Seventy-five members were present.

Mrs. Adams presented Mrs. Frank Dennis, of Eatonton, who introduced the general officers: Mrs. Aurelia Roach McMillan, of Atlanta, historian general; Mrs. Thomas H. Buttrill, of Jackson, librarian general, and Mrs. John Marshall Slaton, first vice president general and past state president.

Mrs. Adams presented the society with a beautiful gavel which had been carved from the wood of a cedar tree which grew in Florida and which was over 100 years old. Mrs. John M. Slaton led in the pledge to the flag. Mrs. Edgar Gunn served as recording secretary in the absence of Mrs. Mark Smith, of Thomaston.

A memorial service was held for the late Mrs. W. W. Starke, of Commerce, who at the time of her death was corresponding secretary. Mrs. W. E. Mann, chaplain, had charge of the memorial. Mrs. A. C. DeLoach read a tribute to Mrs. Starke and placed a beautiful Easter lily in a crystal bowl in her memory. Mrs. A. R. McMillan, Mrs. Moreland Speer and Mrs. C. E. Pittman also paid tribute to Mrs. Starke.

Mrs. Alfred Noel Murray gave the treasurer's report. Mrs. A. G. DeLoach, yearbook chairman, reported that the yearbook had been completed and distributed to the members. Her committee includes Mrs. W. C. Carpenter, Mrs. C. D. Tebo, Mrs. E. E. R. Gunn, Miss Lois Biles and Mrs. W. A. Capps. Mrs. DeLoach was instructed by the society to send copies of the book to Mrs. A. M. Dulaney, president general; Mrs. T. H. Quill, treasurer general, and to Mrs. A. B. Furnish, registrar general.

Mrs. C. E. Tebo, registrar, reported that 98 papers, new and supplemental, had passed through her hand since the November meeting. Mrs. Kirby Smith Anderson, historian, reported that her book "Taverns and Inns of Early Georgia," had been released by the printer and that she was presenting to the society a copy which is to be kept on the shelves of the society in Rhodes Memorial hall.

The following were elected delegates to the twenty-fourth conference of the society to be held in Washington, in April: Mrs. John Edward Lane, Mrs. Kirby Smith Anderson, Mrs. A. G. DeLoach, Mrs. C. E. Pittman and Mrs. J. E. Satterfield; alternates elected were Mrs. Arthur Allen, Mrs. Mildred Rhodes, Mrs. C. E. Tebo, Mrs. W.

E. Mann, Mrs. G. L. Breitenbucher.

Mrs. C. E. Tebo, scholarship chairman, reported that the society now had a scholarship girl at Washington Seminary and a scholarship student at the Southern Business College. Mrs. Tebo reported 511 hours of work, amounting to $255.50 and that new magazines amounting to $6.25 had been sent to United States Base Hospital No. 48.

New members introduced were Mrs. Reuben Garland and Mrs. Estes Bussey, of Atlanta, and Mrs. D. B. Launius, of Monroe.

Peachtree Hills Club

The Peachtree Hills Woman's Club met recently at the home of Mrs. A. H. Strickland on Mobile avenue.

Mrs. T. M. Turner gave a report of the recent benefit bridge party. The club is co-operating in the sale of Atlanta dogwood seals. Mrs. V. Michel was appointed chairman for the cancer drive and Mrs. H. L. Perryman chairman for the Red Cross drive.

The nominating committee, Mrs. Robert Flournoy, chairman; Mrs. George Kasper and Mrs. W. L. Bryan presented the following nominations: Mrs. Lynton F. Ramsey, president; Mrs. T. M. Turner, first vice president; Mrs. H. L. Perry, second vice president; Mrs. Robert Little, recording secretary; Mrs. C. Stegall, corresponding secretary and Mrs. Stanley Davis, treasurer. The entire slate was accepted as read.

Mrs. W. L. Bryan gave a talk on Georgia annotations to the fact-finding report made to the president.

MEN LOVE GIRLS WITH PEP

If you are peppy and full of fun, men will invite you to dances and parties. BUT if you are cross, listless and tired, men won't be interested. Men don't like "quiet" girls. When they go to parties they want girls along who are full of pep. So in case you need a good general system tonic, remember for 3 generations a woman has told another how to go "peppier" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps build up more physical endurance and thus gives you more pep and means freedom from female functional disorders.

Write for a free booklet, "How to Get Well with Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound." Write to: THE LYDIA E. PINKHAM COMPANY, 233 CENTRE STREET, LYNN, MASS.

Would you be interested in an adventure? Plant some Japanese Mountain chrysanthemums. You will get blooms next fall, many different kinds. You can also plant Japonicum improved for perennial varieties. On that old ash dump you should plant Clarkia, they do not want food nor attention. They bloom profusely, plant the double varieties. Everyone knows about cosmos, but some of you do not realize that in recent years we have had the early blooming varieties. Plant the Early Crested White, also Orange Flare, an early, dwarf orange-colored one. However, be careful of the placing of orange flare, the color is spring. I prefer the cutting garden for it.

Try a package of the Hybrid Coleus. The colorings are lovely, and during the midsummer slump they can be well used in flower arrangements. Also in the fall they are rich and colorful.

Now is the time to plant Dahlias from seed. You may grow either dwarf or tall varieties, and single or double. From seed planted in March you will have blossoms in August. The tubers formed can be saved and used in succeeding years. I especially like the Unwins dwarf hybrids. They are very easy to grow in this way. Dry sunny gardens will welcome Gaillardias, for as long as you keep the blossoms cut you will continue to have more blossoms. This spring plant some of both the annual and perennial varieties and each succeeding year you will continue to have both, the annual ones will reseed, and the perennial ones can be propagated from cuttings.

Very similar, only much taller, is Helianthus. This is the sunflower family, some are annuals and some are perennials. They are a hardy and persistent family and one grown with the greatest ease.

Attend The Constitution's Spring Garden School March 28, 29, 30, at the Atlanta Woman's Club.

Pilot Club To Meet

The Pilot Club meets at Draughton's Business College March 28 at 7 o'clock.

This meeting, conducted by the Pilot education committee, composed of Miss Martha Randall, chairman, and Misses Myrtle Morton and Gladys Cory, is to be in the nature of a day spent in the "little red school house." Members of the Pilot Club will turn back the years to study the "Three R's" of Pilotism, and gingham dresses and hair ribbons will be the order of the day. An old-fashioned box supper will be served during recess.

Past Pocahontas Club

CARAVAN—A special group of five tunes, played by the King of Swing and sung by Martha Tilton and Johnny Mercer, will be on the Caravan program when Benny Goodman broadcasts its weekly air show from the Earle theater, in Washington, D. C., over WGST at 8:30 o'clock tonight.

INFORMATION—John Gunther and Oscar Levant will be heard as guests during the Information Please program to be heard over WAGA at 7:30 o'clock tonight. The entire board of experts will be composed of veterans as Gunther has been heard on the program once before and the musical Oscar Levant has been heard several times.

The old stand-bys, John Keiran and Franklin P. Adams, will be present to lend their prestige and I. Q. to the program. Opposing this foursome of wit and wisdom will be Clifton Fadiman, cast in his usual role typifying Inquisitive America.

SCHOOL—Aaron Coplan, whose recent achievements include writing of incidental music to a modern Shakespearean production, will give his views on how Mendelssohn and Tchaikovsky musically interpreted the Avon bard's plays when the noted, United States composer is guest commentator on the American School of the Air's program to be heard over WGST at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Bernard Herrman will conduct the Columbia Broadcasting Symphony during the half-hour program.

The program includes: Schostakovich's "Missa in F Minor," by Mendelssohn; "Anitra's Dance" from "Peer Gynt" Suite, by Grieg.

LULLABY—The "Community Lullaby" program will be heard at its first evening presentation over WATL at 7:15 o'clock tonight, to continue at that hour Tuesday evenings through the year, sponsored by the Community Chest.

Mrs. C. Brevard Falls will read an original story, "How Susie Got Her Doll," based on an actual instance of Community Chest agency service to Atlanta children.

The program includes: Gaynor's "The Slumber Boat," Head's "Slumber Song of the Mad Brahms," "Cradle Song."

BARRON—Blue Barron and his "Music of Yesterday and Today" styled the "Big Band Way" will be the stage attraction at Loew's grand theater starting Friday, March 24. Barron was a college classmate of Sammy Kaye and uses a style much like that of the "swing and sway" maestro.

The young band leader, who made a name for himself as leader of a famous "swing" band, will bring to Atlanta a 17-person stage crew which includes Bobby Pinkus, Tiny Wolf and Rude Carlisle.

Freight Bureau, in a statement yesterday, said that the elimination of freight rate discrimination will do away with the necessity of preferential wage differentials in southern industry.

The entire nation is being adversely affected by "a rate structure that has deprived the south of its right of participation," Mr. Bachman stated. He characterized the rate discriminations as a violation of the principles of American democracy. He added: "Freight rates are imperative not only because the present situation is a serious one, but for the more compelling reason that for the entire nation is suffering from the subnormal per capita income of the south and the industrial congestion in the north."

In 1937, the per capita income in Georgia for example had dropped to $253 and in Alabama to $189. In the same year, the per capita income in Massachusetts was $539 and in New York $700.

"Manufacturing income in Georgia for the year was $142,000,000 in Alabama $85,000,000, while in New York it was $971,000,000.

"Our New England neighbors appear to be considerably agitated by the prospect of a general rate adjustment which would give the south parity with the north."

"They frankly declare that if the rate handicaps under which we have long been restrained are removed, there will be a heavy migration of factories from their territory to the south."

"The admission that rate advantages are necessary to keep industries in their section is itself a convincing reason for the removal of these rate discriminations. Certainly there can be no reasonable or economic justification for rate devices which prevent the establishment of factories where they can operate to best advantage."

Tomb of Egyptian King Oserkon

Believed Found in Delta of Nile

Sarcophagus of Solid Gold Bears Mummy of Ruler; Value Is Placed at $500,000; Farouk Rushes Guards From Cairo.

CAIRO, March 20.—(UP)—Egyptologists probing deeper into an ancient tomb originally believed to be that of King Solomon's father-in-law said tonight the tomb contained the mummy of King Oserkon.

King Farouk accompanied the excavators the 47 miles from Cairo to the site of the old city of Tanis in the Nile delta where the tomb was uncovered by Professor Pierre Montet, of Strasbourg University.

The Egyptian government regarded the discovery of such importance that it ordered all digging stopped until guards could be dispatched from Cairo to protect the tomb's treasures.

Identity of the ancient king was established when the scientists opened the heavy gold sarcophagus. The sarcophagus was the first of gold unearthed since the Tutankhamen near Luxor 14 years ago.

(The Paris Soir reporting on Montet's discovery, said the sarcophagus was of pure gold weighing more than a ton. It placed its value at $500,000.)

Investigators also found beautifully carved gold boxes supposed to contain the vital organs of King Sheshak, 20th dynasty contemporary of Solomon. A silver sarcophagus in the tomb was said to contain a number of jewels.

Beside the gold sarcophagus were found traces of two female skeletons, presumably those of servants, wearing rich burial ornaments of jewels about the neck and ankles.

Large sealed vases in a corner of the tomb were believed to contain important papyri.

A number of chambers next to the tomb have not been opened, and the investigators believed that perhaps the tomb had not yet reached the real tomb.

The use of gold in tombs became common Egyptian practice in about the 20th dynasty, about 1000 B. C., a time regarded by Egyptologists as one of decline in Egyptian art.

Remains dating back to the fourth dynasty have been taken by excavators who for more than half a century have worked in the vicinity of ancient Tel Basta, near Tanis. Zagagay today is a cotton center.

Also surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Herbert Hennion, of Morristown, N. J., and Mrs. Benjamin Donaldson; a son, John Wellington, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and a brother, Edward A. Gately, of Caldwell, N. J.

Funeral services will be conducted this morning at Maple-

'OBSTACLES' DEAL BLOW TO PARLEY ON SEIZURE OF OIL

'Fortunate' That Engagements Compel Return to Washington, Richberg Says in Mexico City.

MEXICO CITY, March 20.—(AP) Donald Richberg, attorney for expropriated foreign oil companies, said tonight that "practical difficulties and obstacles" had developed in efforts to reach a settlement with the Mexican government.

Because of the unexpected developments, Richberg said in a statement it "seemed to me fortunate" that engagements concerning other matters "compel me to return to Washington."

He explained this expression by saying the trip would afford him an opportunity to discuss the case with those "most deeply concerned." He referred to executives of the oil companies in the national capital.

The former NRA administrator will hold a final conference Wednesday with President Lázaro Cárdenas before returning to Washington. He has been here several days negotiating with Cárdenas in behalf of the 17 British and American oil companies whose properties, valued by their owners at $400,000,000, were expropriated by the government a year ago.

Richberg made no reference to a recent government announcement that he was returning late in April to resume the negotiations.

In a carefully worded statement, the attorney emphasized that a cooperative plan for operating the properties as outlined Saturday night by Cárdenas was Mexico's idea and "has not been accepted by the companies by me as their representative."

Georgia Income Tax Collections Show Decrease

Georgians have paid $4,363,709.14 in federal income taxes since last March 1, Marion Allen, collector of internal revenue, reported yesterday.

The figure is $318,014.57, or approximately 7 per cent, less than collections for the corresponding period of 1938. Disputes from Washington indicate, however, that collections for the nation as a whole for the same period show a decrease of almost 25 per cent.

Allen pointed out that the total released yesterday represents only a one-fourth payment on the part of the majority of Georgia taxpayers.

BUILDING IS DAMAGED BY DRIVERLESS AUTO

A driverless automobile last night crashed through the front of a dry cleaning establishment at 297 Angier avenue, demolishing a plate glass window and damaging the building. The vehicle was owned by George W. West, of 2147 Ponce de Leon avenue, secretary and treasurer of the West Lumber Company.

John H. Jones, 36, negro chauffeur for Mr. West, told police he parked the car at 345 Angier avenue when he stopped to pay a bill. The brake became released and the car rolled down the street, striking a vehicle parked in front of 320 Angier avenue, and continuing through the front of the dry cleaning establishment.

INTERIOR BUREAU FUND BILL PASSED

WASHINGTON, March 20.—(AP) The House passed and sent to the Senate today an appropriation bill providing $159,543,905 for the operations of the Interior Department during the next fiscal year.

Largest lump sum appropriation was $50,622,600 for reclamation. Large appropriations included $20,434,282 for national parks; $19,082,380 for the office of education; $5,000,000 for the United States Housing Authority; and $3,185,000 for the Bituminous Coal Commission.

"No more tired" let down feeling for me

"I feel and look better—there is color in my cheeks—my appetite is keen—my weight is back to normal."

"This I am noting in my diary and I give full credit to S.S.S. for causing me to 'feel like myself again.'"

So we suggest—

Don't try to get well in a day... this is asking too much of Nature. Remember, she has certain natural processes that just cannot be hurried.

Therefore, if you are pale, tired, lack a keen appetite, have lost weight and feel run-down... a frequent sign that your blood cells are weak—then do try in the simple, easy way so many millions approve by starting a course of S.S.S. Blood Tonic.

Atlantan Listed in Honor Group At Princeton; Finishing in 3 Years

G. Arthur Howell Preparing Thesis on Hoke Smith Movement.

An Atlanta boy, whose outstanding scholastic rating will find him completing a four-year course at Princeton University in three years, has been listed as one of eight students in the first honor group at the college. The Constitution learned yesterday.

G. Arthur Howell, son of Mrs. G. Arthur Howell, of 400 Pace Ferry road, is the student. He has won "no-course" privileges during the second term of his senior year, according to news received from the New Jersey university.

Young Howell, who has been accepted in the Harvard Law School for next fall's term, has been termed "one of the most exceptional no-course scholars" and is now here working on his history thesis, "The Progressive Movement in Georgia under Hoke Smith."

According to information from Princeton, 43 seniors are now studying under the plan, having qualified by maintaining a first group-average in their department of study during their junior year and the first term of their senior year. They are exempt from all courses in the spring term, but are required to write theses and take the usual senior comprehensive examinations.

The young Atlantan, who will be the first man in many years to graduate from Princeton in three years, is also taking three extra courses, in addition to the work in preparation of his history thesis.

Two other Atlantans, Elbert Tuttle Jr., and Mac Asbill, members of the freshman class at Princeton, have also received honor rating it was learned yesterday. Young Tuttle, who was graduated from North Fulton High school with honors last spring and was valedictorian of his class, is one of 11 students included in the first honor group of his class at the university. Asbill, who was also graduated with honors from North Fulton High school last year, serving his class as salutatorian, is a member of the second honor group.

SECOND RARE STONE FOUND IN CAROLINA

Block Found Near Center Hill, N. C., May Aid in Mystery.

Speculation as to the possibility of clearing up the mystery of what happened to Sir Walter Raleigh's "Lost Colony" on the Carolina coast has again been renewed with finding yesterday of a second stone, containing mysterious carvings, near Edenton, N. C.

Last year a similar stone, purported to bear inscriptions relating to the family of Virginia Dare, first English child born on the American continent, was discovered in the vicinity of Roanoke Island and was sent to Dr. Haygood J. Pearce Jr., professor of history at Emory University, to be deciphered. It is now in the possession of Brenau College, Gainesville, Ga.

The stone found yesterday was discovered by H. L. Chappell, near Center Hill, about five miles from the Chowan river, in Perquimans county, North Carolina.

Chappell told the Associated Press that he had notified Professor Pearce. Efforts to communicate with the Emory University professor were unavailing last night.

The stone was described as weighing about 60 pounds, and was said to bear marks resembling letters, which had not been caused by the elements, but had been cut there.

SIX MILES DISPUTE MAKE

Charges of 'Speed-Up' in Fisher Plant Made by UAW.

FLINT, Mich., March 20.—(AP) Mediators for the General Motors Fisher Body Plant No. 1 and the United Automobile Workers' Union sought tonight to settle a dispute over employment of six men and evolving into idleness for 7,000.

Both sides indicated an early agreement would be reached to return to work 1,000 men sent home from the Fisher plant and 6,000 made idle in the Buick division. The Fisher factory produces car bodies for the Buick plant.

The old issue of "speed-up" and "slow-down" was responsible, with today's shutdowns related to a dispute which closed the Fisher plant Friday for five hours and also closed Buick departments with 3,000 men.

Fisher plant officials said six men, hired to replace six laid off Friday for causing a "slow-down" on the assembly line, had stopped work today, forcing a unit of the plant to be closed. Ultimately the Buick division closed its doors, 3,300 men resumed activities on the night shift.

Jerry Aldred, financial secretary of UAW Local 581, charged the company "tried a speed-up Friday in this department by reducing the man-power on one operation from eight men to six."

The six were unable to handle the work and were given "penalty layoffs," Aldred said. He said six others were assigned today and they were "unable to do the work of eight."

The dispute, Aldred said, had no relation to the factional fight of the auto workers' union. The local is a supporter of Homer Martin and his "independent" UAW, which has broken with the CIO.

Convicted Burglar Uses Tooth, Nail In Bid for Freedom at Courthouse

Two Deputy Sheriffs Bitten Severely When Prisoner Makes Vicious Attempt to Escape But Picks the Wrong Door for His Exit.

There was an exciting three minutes at the Fulton county courthouse yesterday.

G. B. Bennett, negro, convicted on 14 counts of burglary and sentenced to serve from 14 to 26 years, did the nipping, taking small bits and even hunks from the hands and arms of a deputy sheriff and elevator operator, and finally, the officer and his aide did the tucking when they picked the prisoner from a corridor floor where he fell beneath their bombardment.

Bartlett was being escorted from the prisoners' elevator to the detention room in the basement, and decided to make one last desperate and daring bid for freedom.

That called for action. The negro darted out of the elevator, ran down a narrow corridor leading to the rear entrance and encountered two sets of double doors, which blocked his way. He dove at the first set, but picked the

Tokyo Reports Four-Hour Battle With Soviet Troops.

TOKYO, March 21.—(Tuesday) (UP)—The commanders of Japan's powerful Kwantung army in Manchukuo today sent reinforcements to Suifuhen-Pogranichnyaya, at the eastern terminus of the former Chinese Eastern railway, to dislodge Soviet Russian forces which were said to have invaded Japanese-controlled territory during the week end.

Reflecting tension in Europe, where the Japanese see Russia as taking a leading role in an effort to form a coalition against Japan, Germany and Italy, both Kwantung and Korean armies moved troops into strategic positions along the Soviet border "to be prepared for any eventuality."

The week-end clash at Suifuhen, where the East-West North Manchurian railway, the old Chinese Eastern line, which Manchukuo took over from Russia when the new state was created) joins the North-South Soviet Ussuri line, was described at the war office as "not important unless it means a deliberate Soviet effort to provoke a clash, similar to that at Suifuhen, which a Soviet detachment crossed the border near the railway junction and began the construction of trenches within Japanese-controlled territory."

Manchukuo frontier guards summoned Japanese soldiers, who repulsed the Russians after a battle of four or five hours.

The border, long disputed in this area, has been the scene of numerous clashes in the past.
